Now THELA MOTION.

NORTON AND OTHELS V. HOWEN'S AND OTHERS.

The argument in this case, which had been parily heard on previous days, was restured and concluded. It was a notion by rule nist for new trial in an action of ejectment (tried in August, 1804), wherein the plaintiffs had obtained a verdict, subject to a reference to the full Court upon certain legal toutus, all of which were raised by the present rule. The action was brought to recover possession of 1800 acres of land at Illawarra, known as Paul's grant, being part of the estate called "Terry's Meadows." The question at issue was whether this property passed under the will of the late Samuel Terry, and codicils thereto, as part of his residualy evante, or whether, having been acquired by the testator subsequent to the date of such will, it passed to the heirest alaw, Mr.s. Hoaking.

The Solicitor General, Mr. Broadhurst, Q.C., and Mr. Stephena, instructed by Mr. Graham, appeared in support of the motion; and the Autorept-General, Sir William Manning, Q.C., and Mr. Gordon, instructed by Mesera. Billyard and Curits, in support of the wordict.

There were seven points raised by the rule misi. 1. That the testator (Terry); at the time of the execution of his codicil, had no devisable interest in the land in contest. 2. That there was no evidence against these defendants of any written contract with, or conveyance of any kind to, the testator from the promise of the land prior to the codicil.

3. That the plaintiffs had no legal title to casable them to maintain this action. 4. That the plaintiffs were estopped or barred from maintaining their action by the judgment of this Court in the Enquire of the land prior to the codicil.

5. That no evidence of possession in the testator prior to Paul's conveyance of a possession in the testator prior to Paul's conveyance of possession in the testator prior to P the month has been firm, and the advance noticed last month has not only been maintained, but in some few instances a further improvement has been realised for the first-clips and accoured wools. Greasy wool has been rather dull of sale, and many lots offered at auction have been passed. The quantity offered by the preduce auctioneers last Thursday was about 863 bales, of which 617 were sold. The principal lots were 20 bales fleece, R8, 19d.; 40 bales, KWIS in aquare, 18d.; 54 bales, JC in diamond, 18d.; 10 bales scoured, Ifield, 20½d.; 20 bales greasy, C&B, 9½d.; 20 bales, JW, 8½d.; 26 bales, WC, 10d.; 18 bales, B under half-circle, 16½d.; 20 bales, JW, 8½d.; 26 bales, WC, 10d.; 18 bales, B under half-circle, 9d. Prices ranged during the sales as follows: Fleece, 14d. to 19d.; grease, 7d. to 10½d.; accured, 14d. to 20½d.

SHEPPARING FULL SALES AND SALES

19s.; mutten, £51 to £53; second quality, £49 to £50 per ton.

Hidden,—First-class heavy hides, suitable for tanning purposes, are in request at extreme rates. Two lots brought, last Friday, at auction, from 1&9d. to 20s. each. Light and inferior hides are without any alteration on last month's prices. The quotations are:—Light te medium, 4s. to 10s. 6d.; medium heavy, 11s. to 14s. 9d.; extra weights, 16s. to 20s. each.

Rick.—There is very little doing in this article, but prices have gradually given way about 20s. per ton. Patna is quoted at £25 to £26 per ton. Java, none in the market.

Salt is a shade firmer. Liverpool, £3 10s. to £3 12s. 6d.; fine salt, £3 15s. to £4 per ton. Rock salt dull of sale, but price unaltered.

Phovisions continue to command extreme prices, shipments being still below the quantity required for consumption. Cheese, la 4d. to 1s. 6d., according to quality; hams, ls. 4d. to 1s. 8d.; bacon, 15d. to 16d. per 1b.

Dilkof Fauits.—Currants are firm, and quoted at 6jd. to 6jd.; raisins, 7jd. to 8d.; figs in better supply, and offered at 14d. per 1b.

Olikar's Syouss.—Well-selected invoices continue in request at full rates; oils and pickles scarce, but mustard and bottled fruits are dull of sale.

Toracco.—The business of the past month is the imported article has been an improvement upon the previous one; and a return to the position of the tobacco market prior to the war is closely approximating, price and quality ruling the future. Stocks of saleable tobaccoes in the colonies are anything but plentiful, and but for excessive caution in dealers would soon absorb all good samples in first hands. Southern negrohead may be quoted at 2s.; Western at (say) is. 3d. to 1s. 6d.; Honeydew tens, first-class brands, of which Sydney holds the largest stock, from 1s. to 1s. 6d. Manila cigars, 55s. in bond.

The following is from the Money Article of the Times of the 26th January:—

At the lish Court this morning no alteration was made in the rate of discount, and the figures of the weekly return new published, although not unastisatedry, are such as to show there would be likely to retard the progress of recovery. The increase in the reserve, although considerable, is only such as should ordinarily occur at this period, while the slight augmentation in the gold is due mersly to the return of sovereigns from the provinces, and not to any improvement in the continental exchanges, the of which is as adverse as at any time during the past two or three weeks.

Messrs. Burt and Co. sold by auction yesterday and Monday 146 head of fat cattle (Scholey's), from £4 4s. to £8, average £5 10s; and 118 head (J. J. Rose), from £4 4s. to £1 and 150 sheep, at 13s. 7d.

The sales by auction to-morrow (Wednesday) comprise the cargo of Bourbon sugar ex Victor, by Messrs. L. E. Threlkeld and Co., and the cargo of Chilian flour ex Herald of Light, and the cargo of Mauritius sugars ex Robert Passenger, by Mr. W. Dean.

A fair amount of business has been transacted in our market during the past month, and the prices of teas, sugars, and breadstuffs have fluctuated considerably. Our trade with the neighbouring colonies of Queensland and New Zealand has been somewhat checked by the

The Sydney Morning Berald. WEDNESDAY, MARCH 21, 1868.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 21, 1866.

In the Legislative Assembly, yesterday,
In reply to questions put to Ministers the following information was elicited—that it was not the intention of the Government to fence in and plant the Government reserves in the city of Sydney, but that they would probably be turned over to the Corporation upon certain conditions;—that the Government intended to carry out the determination conveyed in a letter to Mr. Garrett from the Colonial Secretary's office, dated 29th December last, relative to the payment of the remainder of the costs in the case of Herry against the Mayor of Shoalhaves, that the amount which the then Attorney-General advised ought to be paid would be paid on application, and that with reference to the balance of the costs and those incurred in connection with the injunction, the Government would take no action.

Mr. Byransa, in reply to an inquiry of Mr. Neale, laid on the table the correspondence between the Corporation of Sydney and the Government relative to the drainage of Darlinghurst gool.

Mr. Dones presented a petition from the Presbyterian congregation at Maitland in connection with the Synod of Eastern Australia, against grants for public worship.

A message was presented from the Governor recommending provision to be made to the extent of £1500 for the purpose of ensuring the representation of this colony at the Paris Exhibition of 1867.

The following were agreed to as formal motions:—
By Mr. Gariert, that the resolution agreed to on the 6th March, with reference to the reduction of timber license fees, be communicated by address to the Governor; by Mr. Cardwill, for the printing of the petition presented by him on the 16th instant, from Mr. J. Richardson, respecting State-aid to religion: by Mr. Terry for the printing of the petition presented by him on the 16th instant, from residents of Mudgee, piaying for the extension of municipalities.

Mr. Cowren moved the second reading of the bill to receive the Act rendering newspaces labels to the question opportune; but he must support the motion on principle.

Mr. Du Salis, Mr. Pickerino, Mr. Daiver, and Mr. Denninos supported the motion, and Mr. Didnam, Mr. Hyan, and Mr. Piddinam contending that newspaper proprietors might with equal justice ask for a subsidy from the State to make up the deficiency of their profits.

Mr. Lucas opposed the motion, contending that no case had been made out for the exemption of newspapers from postage, and moreover that the discussion of this question in the present state of the insurers was inopportune. He moved the previous question.

change.
Mr. Pindikotok took the same view.
Mr. Bunks opposed the motion.
Dr. Lano treated the motion as a specimen of minute criticism.
Mr. Lucas moved the adjournment of the debate until Tuesday next. Mr. Parkss opposed the motion, which was negatived after a short discussion.

Mr. Forster, in reply, contended that no justification, as regarded the public benefit, had been abown in the change of which he now complained, that of making a comparatively inferior office a political one. The motion was negatived by 25 to 3.

Mr. Hant moved, —That on Priday next the House go into committee to consider an address to the Governor, praying that he would cause to be placed on the Estimates, or Supplementary Estimates, for the present year, a sum not exceeding $104 per annumior such time as the House should determine, as compensation to the family of the late Mrs. De Courcy. The motion was agreed to.

The House adjourned at twenty minutes to one, on a division of 27 to 10.

This chief topic of conversation and before which all other interests seem for the moment submerged is the London. One universal cry of wailing and execration has risen from all classes. Colonists have personal interests connected with ships, and their destiny is closer and more general than can avisit in Mandassand more general than can exist in England save in the scaport towns and among a maritime population. One great excitement of colonial life is the departure and arrival of mails, the speed and success of navigation, and the circulation of population and merchandise by sea. Few colonists have not had their experience of the dangers and pleasures of a voyage. All are from year to year watching and waiting for the news of the safety of public and private persons who go to the countries of Europe for business and recreation, and few, if able to do so, fail to visit the homes or graves of their kindred. The colonial newspaper is charged with shipping intelligence as its most valued information, and when a lady takes up a journal wet from the press, she is looking for the chronicle of domestic life, and then for the shipping reports. How indeed can it be othershipping reports. How indeed can it be other-wise. The voyage which constituted the first great break from English life was to most a vast change; and the business of the ship, the dangers of the sea, the novelties of its society, the excitement of arrival, and the long remembered fellow travellers who take their several ways, live in the memory and create an interest in navigation and sharpen the sense of its vicissitudes. Then these great calamities come home to every circle as a domestic bereavement. We have known the persons who are lost as well as have been exposed to similar perils: their widows and orphans are among us. We have seen them in the seasons of domestic and social enjoyment. The seasons of domestic and social enjoyment. The contrast between their expectations of the day when a father, brother, or son was to have been surprised at the threshold with ingenious welcomes, and overwhelmed with the kisses of children, and the agony of the dark hour of fatal intelligence and irreparable bereavement, is what all have seen and too many have felt. the colonies are alarmed at the evidence watched: that precious life is at the mercy of avarice; that the payment of large sums counts for nothing in security of transit; that a spirit of gambling deals with the bodies and a spirit of gambling deals with the bodies and souls of men, and that we can no longer solace ourselves that we have only to reckon with the winds and waves, but with the violated laws of nature, and the neglected principles of mechanics. We feel assured that had these not been disconstituted by York and the results and the second of the control of regarded the London would have been safe it regarded the London would have been safe in the storms which mastered her. It will be proper for those morally responsible to show upon what scheme of navigation they laded this ship with 1200 tons of railway iron, and as many of coal, and sent her into the Bay of Biscay eighteen inches below the line of safety, even had the cargo been in proper proportion When we consider that what happene might have been expected, that those who laded the ship must have known it to be possible, and that this was done with hundreds of passengers on board, who can be astomished the people curse the cold-hearted cruelty which has taken from them the widow and orphan of home and bread; that has empirical all joys and darkened all prospects, and will send some mourning to the grave. All this is not to be forgiven by society at large, however individuals may pardon. And will the English people, who draw millions a year from the colonies, and whose ours kinsmen form them people, who whose own kinsmen form them, permit this affair to be engulfed in the vortex of affairs, and pass out of sight? It is in England the remedy must be sought, and, by laws as stringent as human life is sacred, this system of hazard prevented, which gives to confiding passengers all the risk, and London merchants all the gain. If the Insurance Companies would insure no ship unfit for sea by the method of lading as well as the qualities of the hull—if persons superintending the loading were criminally liable and the owners civilly for the violation of the law, and then for the actual consequences of its non-observance—should we onsequences of its non-observance—should we have such misfortunes? One of the best ships bound to this port, and owned by persons who rank high in the mercantile world for probity and but for the good providence of Gop we should be deploring many lost lives which are precious among us and are spared to us.

The embarrassment of trade is not to be considered a moment in competition with safety. But it is no profit to violate the laws of prudence and equity. The safety of ships is essential to their success as a mercantile specula-tion, and as elements of wealth. Gambling has its fascinations, Lecause to individuals it is sometimes a gain, but to a nation it cannot be.

The question at present will not be the expens of travel, but the possibility of surviving it. It is difficult to quit a subject so full of grief, or say the last word of remonstrance and re-proach: difficult to forget that a great wrong has been done, and a great loss inflicted—by huran hands. Our English readers cannot take the full idea of the sorrow, or the atone-ment which it demands. To them the list of ment which it demands. To them the list of passengers are names, and one impresses no more than another; but to us they convey all the impression of reality. Those groups of beings who stood on the deck of the London as the only boat quitted her, and who saw the descending lines of the vessel sinking beneath them; we can recall their countenances, we can distinguish their voices, we can tell the import of their tears—and we seem to be present at a of their tears—and we seem to be present at great sacrifice made on the altar of Mammon These death cries came from the lips of our kinsmen! What human sympathy can do will be done to alleviate so much woe Colonists, always compassionate to the unfortu nate, will be doubly so when bereavement fallen on the families of public benefactors. so when bereavement ha

THE end of the present month may possibly witness the end of the Parliamentary session. It is the desire of the Ministry that this should be so, and it will be from no want of effort on their part if it is not so. Except the revived controversy on the subject of State-aid to reli-gion, there has been and will be nothing to delay it. No formal attempt has been made to unseat the Ministry, for though the late Premier unseat the ministry, for though the late Fremier had a nominal majority in the House at the time of his resignation, his followers seem to have melted away since he was banished to the Opposition beaches, and he has no the Opposition beaches, and he has no compact party prepared to storm the Ministerial stronghold or take advantage of any breach. The consolation of the ex-Premier has therefore been limited to a few skirmishes, in which he has not been always victorious. The Parliament and the country acquiesce in the present Administration as inevitable under the circumstances, if not altogether satisfactory.

If it were asked what the country has gained at present by the change of Administration, it would not be easy to point to any accomplished facts. We have exchanged a worn-out Ministry for one with more vigour, but the results of the change have yet to be disclosed. Everything change have yet to be disclosed. Everything in the shape of reform is postponed till next session. The excuse for a short session was a valid and undeniable one, as the present session belongs properly to last year. To prolong it would answer no good purpose. Great promises are held out of vigorous legislation seems to be a serious control of the co legislation next session-a session which is to legislation next session—a session which is to commence not later than June. Then, and not till then, is the country to reap the benefits of the change of Cabinet. There are so many things that urgently require administrative energy and skill, that there is plenty of scope for the fulfilment of the promises that have been made. But, at the same time, past expe-rience underrates our expectations and forbids is to be unduly sanguine.

The Estimates have been so far dealt with as The Estimates have been so far dealt with as to indicate the general result that will be obtained. Mr. Cowper, under severe and unusual pressure, had virtually pledged himself to reduce the Estimates by £120,000, and had made a preliminary step in the direction of discovering how it was to be done. Whether he would have fully redeemed that pledge is very doubtful. The present Government declined to be in any way bound by it, and, while adopting some of his reductions, proposed other increases that more than neutralised them. A portion of the Assembly, consisting chiefly of those who have never been tamed by the responsibilities of office, have made a stout stand for economy, and have succeeded in making some reductions. These reductions have been very irregular and These reductions have been very irregular and unsymmetrical, depending, as they have done, on chance votes. But they were resolved to get whatever was obtainable, and were not particular as to where the clippings were, so long as a reduction was made in the sum total. The only large sum hitherto knocked off the Estimates is the sum of £40,000 for immigraretinates is the sum of £40,000 for immigra-tion, which it was proposed to raise by loan. The Government, of course, has stood by its Estimates, and resisted all efforts at reduction this position has been defended on the ground that reductions ought not to be arbitrary, but that reductions ought not to be arbitrary, but should be brought about by a systematic re-organisation of the civil service. For this there has not been time during the few months the present Ministers have been in command of their respective departments, but they pledge themselves to do the work during the recess. This defence has been once to the resist that themselves to do the work during the recess. This defence has been open to the reply that three of the present Ministers have seen in their present offices before, and are familiar with all the departmental details, and that if they were not prepared to make specific reductions how comes it that they were prepared to make specific increases? The attitude of the Government in resisting reductions has not of course added to though they answer the purpose for which they were imposed, and materially aid in bringing he revenue above the expenditure. The jection to them, however, is not the quantity of texation they impose, but their mercantile in-jury and inconvenience, and their tendency to note fraud to the disadvantage of the more mest trader, and to enhance disproportionately the price of commodities to the consumer. They do not bring in very much more than the doubling of the tea and sugar duties would have done. The Ministry, however, is resolved for the present to adhere to these duties, and though some of its apologetic defenders have announced its readiness promptly to find a more suitable substitute, the PREMIER has disclaimed any

Every month's experience certainly makes it increasingly evident either that the present amount of taxation must be sustained, whatever may be the process by which it is raised, or else the annual expenditure must be cut down to an extent which no Administration has as yet dreamed of. Taxation and reduction are both formidable alternatives for a Ministry that does not derire to lose its popularity, but of the two the former has hitherto been faced the less reluctantly. It is possible to get fresh taxes assented to, though the task may be difficult and dangerous; but it is not possible under our present system of government to carry on the administration of affairs without assenting to a large expenditure. Every year the Estimates increase.

Apart from the proceeds of the new taxation, the revenue does not shew much elasticity. There has not been as yet any such revival of prosperity as to affect the revenue favourably. In the Western districts, where the harvest was in the Western districts, where the harvest was the least favourable, considerable distress is reported among the agricultural classes, and many of them have to practise the severest economy to avoid getting into debt. Owing to the long drought, too, provisions are scarce and dear. One good season, however, would put many of them straight, and in the hope of such a season, the plough has been actively at work since the reins fell.

THE PRINCE CONSORT STATUE —We understand the iranguaration of the broase statue of the Prince Consort will take place on the 2ded of Apoll next, when an address will be delivered by his Excellency the Governor. The public looks, including the clergy of all denominations, will be invited to assist. The German population will have a special part assigned them, and by them a hymn will be sure in bosons of the occasion. The subscriptions will, it is expected by that day, cover all the cost—the charges of the artist, Mr. Theed, and freight having been already said. The pedestal is now rising on a site from which the intime will be extensively seen and cannot be built in, namely a god, tearly equidistant from St. James's Church and the help's 18th May's, and facing Macquarie-street. that they were prepared to make specific increases? The attitude of the Government in resisting reductions has not, of course, added to its popularity; while those members of it have especially been in an awkward position who were previously the most urgent for instant and extensive economy, and who when in Opposition would brook no delay and would take no excuse. This change of tone, however, is no novelty, and has excited but little surprise, though in the course of parliamentary debate it has given occasion for a few taunts. Some further reductions may possibly be made in the department of Public Works by the postponement to a future day of some projected undertakings; but as a rule members of the Assembly have usually been free in their votes for works, however economically disposed in the matter of salaries.

The trial of Henry Louis Bertrand, at the Central Criminal Court, for the murder of Mr. Kinder, commenced before the Chief Justice and a general jury, at Darlinghurst, on Wednesday, the 14th instant, and was brought to a rather unsatisfactory termination on the Saturday following, when the jury not being agreed, and suffering in health, were "discharged from giving a verdict, and the prisoner remanded to his former custody." He has since been put upon his trial for the crime with which he stands charged. The case excites considerable interest, and the Court is at all times densely crowded. The case of the man Willis, charged with another capital offence, has similarly engaged the Court, and the accused is to be again brought before a jury. John Dunn, the bush-ranger, was tried for the murder of constable Nelson, and, being found guilty, now lies under sentence of death.

A cure for the fluke or bottle in sheep has been introduced. It consists of powder sulphate of iron with Liverpool salt, in the proportion of one part of sulphate of iron to three of Liverpool salt, given to the sheep ad libitum. It is satisfactory to know that the manufacture of the powder sulphate of iron is a colonial production, and that the new remedy has been found to be very efficacious in eradicating this disease. There has been another cowardly outrage at Parramatta; where, a few days ago, some ruffan attempted to erawl into the house of a lady and her two daughters in the dead of the night. He met with a very warm reception, having been resisted and thrashed with an energy which will doubtless afford him a wholesome lesson for the future.

After a month's interregnum for the Ministerial reslections, the Legislative Assembly met for business on Tuesday last. TERRIFIC EXPLOSION.

A TREMENDOUS explosion occurred at half-past 6 o'clock on Sunday evening, the 6th instant, by which the stores occupied by Mesers Molison and Black, in Bridge-street, were totally destroyed. The noise of the explosion very much resembled the discharge of artillery, and the position of the occurrence was indicated by a dense column of duest and rubbish, which ascended to the height of at least one hundred and fifty feet. The concussion of the atmosphere was such, that the glass of all the windows which happened to be closed at the time within a radius of three or four hundred yards was smashed; indeed, it is said that some of the windows of the Mint, in Macquarie-street, and in other parts of the city at an equal distance, were broken. A good deal of the plate-glass in the offices of the Pacific Insurance Co., the Richange, and stores in Pitt-street, was broken; while in Bridge-street, between George and Pitt streets, there was not a house the windows of which escaped. Lyons-buildings and the Benk of Australasis were also damaged in this particular, and a number of other houses in George-street and Jamison-street were likewise injured. As to the stores, they were completely demolished, there being literally not one stone left upon another. The destruction of the buildings was instantaneous.

The stores were one story high; they had a frontage of about fifty feet to the south side of Bridge-street, and extended back for a distance of seventy or eighty feet. They were built of stone, and were divided by a wall of about two feet in thickness. The front consisted of solid blocks of manonry, and several of the stones, which were three feet long and of proportionate breadth and thickness, were thrown into the street. The roadway was strewn with press of this description appear to have been driven with great violence against the fron shutters of the Colonial Sugar Company; to offices, which were direct and the plate glass of the windows was smashed; many doors and window fames of the to house in th

THE ASSEMBLY.

On Tuesday, 20th February, Mr. Pankus laid on the table despatches from the Secretary of State relative to the petition of the Riverine settlers for separation, and transmitting a new postal contract with the February Mr. Pankus laid on the table despatches from the Secretary of State relative to the petition of the Riverine settlers for separation, and transmitting a new postal contract with the February Mr. Markus explained at some length the course proposed to be taken by the Government in the conduct of the public business. He was aware that there were many questions of importance before the House, to any of them, and the invited the House not to press on any measure but such as was of urgent excessity. The Government proposed only to prove with the Estimates of expenditure, which would not propose to act upon the report from heads of departments for the pressure that there were many questions of the late Government than the barne. With reference to the reduction of expenditure, it was not proposed to act upon the report from heads of departments for the proposed reductions from the Government than the late of the proposed reductions from the Government than the late of the proposed to act upon the report from heads of departments of the proposed to act upon the report from heads of departments of the proposed to act upon the report from heads of departments of the proposed to act upon the report from heads of departments of the proposed to act upon the report from heads of departments of the proposed to act upon the report from heads of departments of the proposed to act upon the report from heads of departments of the proposed to act upon the report from heads of the proposed to act upon the report from heads of the proposed to act upon the report from heads of the proposed to act upon the report from heads of the proposed to act upon the report from heads of the proposed to act upon the report from heads of the proposed to act upon the report from the report from the report from the report THE ASSEMBLY.

be elicited, that certain misstatements with reference to this matter should be corrected, and that the public should be shown how it really stood. He should be prepared to show that everything had been done strictly according to law, and if any irregularity existed it was chargeable to the efficial persons concerned. Mr. Wilson said that he should not onyone the motion, but that he required the inquiry to be made the more comprehensive. He desired the inquiry to extend back to the first operation of the Crowa Lands Alication Act. There was no doubt that no blame was imputable to Mr. Cowper as acting Minister for Lands for the proclamation in question, nor was any such attributable to the official gentlemen concerned. The latter had only acted under the direction of the previous Minister, Mr. Robertson, with whom the actual responsibility rested. The hon. gentleman gave some illustrations from the records of his office of the mode in which the reserves had been made, and in particular the case of the Billibong reserve, which had attracted some notice. Mr. Fontone, as one of the persons interested in the case last mentioned, defended the proceeding therein, and justified generally the action of the late Government. Mr. Dionan deaired the inquiry for the sake of the free selectors Mr. Fontone, and the late Government. Mr. Pontoneon, Mr. Buchanan, and Mr. Lioth advocated the proposed inquiry. Mr. Machana chale considered that it would be advisable for the hon. member for Orange, Mr. Fontone, decined to accept the suggestion. Mr. Hay also considered that it would be more satisfactory to the public if the hon. member were to withdraw. The inquiry was one of great importance, as testing the efficacy of the present land laws, and it was important to secure a disinterested tribunal. After some remarks from Mr. Cowera in reply, the motion was agreed to. A ballot for the proposed committee having been demanded, was duly taken, and resulted in the choice of the following hon. members:—Mr. Cowper, Mr. Tighe, Mr. Fortner, M ordered to be put (the previous question having been moved), upon a division of 27 to 22, and the original motion was carried by 26 to 23.

On Thursday, 1st March, upon the motion of Mr. Eagan, the House went into Committee of Supply, when the accustomed resolutions submitted by the hon, member granting for the service of her Majesty out of the Consolidated Revenue Fund the sum of £1447 to defray the expense of the establishment of his Excellency the Governor, was agreed to. The House having gone into Committee of Ways and Means, Mr. Eagan, in moving the usual resolution that provision be made for the foregoing vote, entered into an exposition of the financial position of the country. His position was happilly different from that of his recent predecessors in office, in that instead of samenting a deficiency of revenue, he could congratulate the House upon their being at last in possession of surplus. The estimate of Ways and Means for 1865, now submitted, showed a balance to the debit of that year of £2671 3s. 3d. being a little in excess of the estimate of the late Treasurer. The estimate balance to the credit of the year 1866, was £149,094 16s. 9d. With reference to the question of retrenchment, it was not proposed by the present Government to follow the course taken by their predecessors, in throwing the responsibility of departments. The Government would not act upon the report furnished to their predecessors, but would assume the responsibility for any reductions themselves. The hon, gentleman gave a detailed statement of the changes proposed to be made in the several departments of the public service, both in point of increase and decrease, showing a total result of £17,263 under the forner head, and £41,008 under the latter. With regard to the reduction of the public debt, the Government proposed to be smale in the several departments of the public service, both in point of increase and decrease, showing a total result of £100,600 for the liquidation of the latter, for which they were bound by the Act t was opposed to all Parlamentary experience to rescaind a resolution thus deliberately arrived at. The hon, gentleman entered into a detailed statement of the action of this Government in consequence of the resolution of the House, showing that a contract had been made with New Zealand from which this colony could not recede without public dishonour. The hon, member also urged the advantages of the Parama route in point of passenger traife. He should oppose this motion as an act of repudiation. Mr. Dn Salas supported the resolution, contending that it was not an act of repudiation, and that the Parama route would be of no benefit to this colony. Dr. Laso was not sanguine as to the results of the proposed line of steam communication, but he must oppose this resolution as an act of repudiation. Mr. Bionam and Mr. Lucas supported the resolution. Mr. Josens opposed the resolution as the resolution was negatived by 21 to 16.—Mr. Cuminos moved a resolution requiring the Government to call for tenders for the construction of the Great Western Railway to the town of Bathurst, making it a condition with the contractor to commence work at the Hathurst end of the line as well as a continuation from No. 4 contract, and urged the undue preference shown to the Southern line. Mr. Byrnes pointed out the engineering difficulties of the Western line, and denied that there had been any needless delay in prosecuing the works. The Government would proceed with the line with all possible dispatch. The condition sought to be imposed upon the contractor would be an act of tyranny. The motion was by leave, withfaram.—Mr. Cowren moved for leave to bring in a bill to repeal the Act rendering newspapers liable to postage. He sought to relieve the public from this import, on the ground that it was vexations in character and trifing in amount, and that in the present state of the revenue the remission could very properly be made. Mr. Eachs opposed the motion, contending that the government were not in a position to spare even this comparativ pensation for a service performed. Supsequently as House was counted out for want of a quorum.

On Wednesday, 14th, the House then went into Committee of Supply. The estimates connected with the administration of justice was postponed, and the committee proceeded with the estimates connected with the departments of Treasurer and Secretary for Finance and Trade. In the estimate of £7618 for the Treasury, Mr. Driver moved that the item of £600, the salary of the accountant of the department, be reduced by the sum of £100, being the amount of increase upon the salary of the previous year. After a long discussion the motion was carried by 29 to 11. The reduced estimate of £7518 was agreed to. In the assimate of £1836 for the Stamp Office, a long discussion arose as to the position and prospects of the department, and as to the office and duties of the Commissioner of Stamps. Mr. Haur moved that the item of £500, being the salary of that afficer, be omitted. The movies was carried by 28 to 12. The reduced estimate of £1835 was agreed to. In the estimate of £28,516 for the Custems depart.

present estimate with that of the previous year. The motion was resisted, on the ground that the increase was justifiable in consequence of the additional duties cast upon the denartment by the collection of at valorem duties, and was negatived without a division. The estimate of £2845 for colonial distilleries and refineries, Mr. Dravar moved that the item of £400, the salary of the Chief Inspector of Distilleries, be reduced by the sum of £100. The motion was negatived by 27 to 11. The estimate was agreed to as preposed. In the estimate of £12,448 for the Sydney branch of the Royal Mint, Mr. Donnelly moved that the item of £1100, the salary of the Deputy Master, be omitted. The motion was opposed on the ground that such a reduction would be a departure from the strangement with the Imperial Government under which this establishment was formed, and that, in point of fact these salaries were fixed and immutable, and beyond the control of the House. The motion for mission of the item was withdrawn. Mr. Dravar, then moved that the item be reduced by £400, thus proposing to reduce the salary to the amount fixed by the Mint Act. The motion was carried by 24 to 12. The reduced estimate of £415 for gold receivers was agreed to. In the estimate of £475 for gold receivers was agreed to. The committee resumed with the consideration of the Estimates in connection with the department of the Secretary for Lands. In reference to the estimate of $10,656 for the service of the gold-fields, Mr. Wilson said that the changes contemplated by the Govern-ment in the management of the gold-fields would proment in the management of the gold-fields would pro-bably render much of the expenditure, the means of defraying which was now asked for, unnecessary, but defraying which was now asked for, unnecessary, but he requested the Committee to vote this estimate as it was impossible to foresee the actual sum required, After a long discussion, the estimate was agreed to as proposed. In reference to the estimate of 2700 for the management of the alpacas, Mr. Witson said that the vote was only taken as a temporary expedient, until the Government could determine the best mode of disposing of the flock, the experiment having proved a failure. The estimate was agreed to. The following estimates were agreed to:—28878 for prevention of Scab in Sheep, 2:300 for inspection of cattle, and £1300 for the service of the coal fields. In the estimate of £3178 for the Botanic Gardens. Mr. Darvia moved the omission of the item of £10 for the erection of a dwarf wall round a portion of the pond in the Lower Garden for the retention of fresh water. The motion was negatived, and the original estimate was agreed to. The estimate of £34,900 for minor roads was discussed at great length with reference to the relative claims of the Northern, Southern, and Western districts. The estimate was ultimately agreed to as submitted. The estimate was ultimately agreed to as submitted. The estimates of £104 for the Haalem's Creek General Cemetery, £300 for medicines for and medical attendance upon the aborigines, and £4184 for miscellaneous services, were agreed to. The estimate of £1000 for extension of Riley-street to Palmer-street, to be raised by loan, was agreed to after some discussion as to the form of the estimate, it being centered that the amount ought to be voted out of the general revenue, but the objection was waived on Mr. Wilson undertaking so to raise the amount required. The committee then proceeded with the consideration of the Secretary for Public Works. In the estimate of £4350 for the department of the Secretary for Public Works. In the setimate of £4300. On Friday, 16th, Mr. Buchanan moved the second reading of a bill for ameadment of the law with regard to the verdict of juries in criminal cases, by making the decision of a majority conclusive. The hengentleman urged the superiority of the well-known principle of Scottish jurisprudence over the principle of the law of England, contending that the latter principle led to a frequent failure of justice in allowing the escape of criminals about whose guilt there was no moral doubt, and creating a tendency to crime from the uncertainty of the tribunal. Dr. Laxo advocated the principle of Scottish jurisprudence as the correct one, and deserving of adoption in the law of this country. Mr. Tiotar supported the bill, and argued that the principle of unanimity of jurise led to uncertainty in the administration of justice, making trial by jury a mere lottery, and facilitating the escape of offenders from justice. Mr. Isaac opposed the bill as introducing an innovation upon a principle of English jurisprudence which had been in force for centuries, and had become closely interwoven in the feelings and habits of the people. The hon, gentleman cited Mr. J. F. Stephen and ether juridical authorities, to show that the cardinal principle of trial by jury upon the English system was the element of certainty in the tribunal owns other juridical authorities, to show that the cardinal principle of trial by jury upon the English system was the element of certainty in the tribunal owing to the compulsory principle of unanimity; that this principle was recognised even in the Scottish system but that the main objection to that system was that it tradic to destroy the deliberative character of the it ribunal, and to make the verdicts of juries matter of prejudice and impulse. The unanimity of juries was the safeguard of the public in securing in the pure and perfect administration of justice Mr. Dr. Salas supported the bill, and cited the authority of Bentham in support of the principle of verdicts of majorities. Mr. Piddintons moved the adjournment, but after a short discussion, the motion was carried by 29 to 7.—Upon the order of the day being read for the consideration in committee or an address to the Governor praying his Excellency to recommend by message the permanent appropriation out of the Consolidated Revenue Fund of the annuals sum of £28,000 for defraying the expense of public worship, Mr. MACHERRSON moved that the Speaker leave the chair. Mr. Piddinton over the theory of the House to legislate worship, Mr. MACHERRSON moved that the Speaker leave the chair. Mr. Piddinton over the principle of grants in aid of public worship, the agitation for which, he contended, was not that of the people at large, but of a few clerical participants. He denied the competency of the House to legislate for the several denominations, and the attempt now made was a direct infringement of this principle. The hom. member reviewed at a great length the proceedings of the Legislative Council in 1852 and again in 1853, and quoted the opinions of Mr. Martin and Mr. Darvelli in opposition to the very principle new sought to be introduced. He deprecased the attempt now made to disturb the minds of the propile by the agitation of this question. The motion was most unwase, and a direct violation of the principle of Christianity. Mr. Dannatur opposed the rotion as a violence done to the conciences of those who dissented from the principle of State supported the motion, and reviewed the principle of State support of ment, Mr. Pinnisortos moved a reducti n of the gross | to the compulsory principle of unanimity; that the estimate by the sum of £1210, in order to equalise the | principle was recognised even in the Scottish system.

On Saturday, 17th, the debate on the several ques pass of clock, when it was arranged that that House should meet at 11. At ten minutes past 11 the Speaker took the chair and a motion for adjournment was again submitted, and the debate was not brought to a close until 1 p.m. The House then adjourned until Tuesday, 20th.

OUR RAILWAY INVESTMENT.

An elaborate report on the railways of the by Mr. RAE, the present Commissioner for Railways. When Captain MARTINDALE was Commissioner he used to present a report annually. Since he has retired from office the innual reports have been discontinued. Mr. RAR has partly compensated for this by giving a short sketch of the history of railway adventure in this colony, and summarising the financial accounts from the commencement. The document forms a valuable repertory of facts and figures, and deserves a careful study at the acquainted with the details of our national in-The tabular statements do not bring the statistical information down to a later point than the end of 1864. The Engineer's report on the It is rather amusing to read in Mr. RAL's nistory that the original capital of the Sydney Railway Company was £100,000. Exactly be much work the enterprising gentlemen who rushed into the speculation expected to get out of this large sum of money was never definitely stated. But in general language they expressed their intention of making a trunk line from Sydney to or towards Parramatta, and then branching off westward and southward, carrying these branches as far as the funds would admit. These ambitious pro at that time labour was comparatively cheap. more might have been done for the money than was ever possible since. But before much pro-gress could be made came the discovery of gold, and the disturbance of the labour market, and cheap works became out of the question up to that time no contracts had been entered into, it is probable that all works would have been delayed sine die enough had been done to make the directors unprices the works on the Parramatta line were continued. As it has turned out, this was a mistake. A delay of a few years would have saved a good deal of money, have placed better engineering skill at our disposal, and have given us better work. The first section was not only worst executed of all our railway works. Instead of the original modest estimate of £100,000 serving for all that was wanted in the county of Cumberland, the line from Sydney to Parramatta junction, including the Darling Harbour branch and the workshops at Redfern, has cost £620,490 10s. 5d. The prospect of such an expenditure for thirteen miles would probably have startled the gentlemen who first set the ball rolling, and have made them think twice before they invested any of their money in such an enterprise. But they were all happily innocent of the real condition railway investment, and, as we have been credibly informed, not one of them had ever seen a railway, and only knew what a locomotive engine was like by the pictures in the Illustrated The line to the Parramatta junction is The line to the Parramatta junction is a double line throughout. Owing to this fact, and to the high price of labour when it was made, it cost £44,321 per mile. The next extension was made with double way but single works, and thereafter only a single way was made. The cost of construction has been reduced by this means, as well as by the greater cheapness of labour and material. The average of our whole work has been brought down to £16,713 per mile exclusive of machinery and rolling stock, and to £18,404 inclusive of that outlay. The present cost of constructing a mile of railway is in round numbers about £14,000, exclusive of rollingstock. Of course, there are many separate miles which are made for far less than that, and several separate sections of line which are cheaper than that. But here and there excep-tionally expensive works become necessary, and these run up the price. The Menangle Bridge alone adds £2364 to the average cost of the whole Southern line, and the Penrith Bridge will make a similar addition to the cost of the

Although the exact cost of the lines now in process of construction cannot be given accu rately, enough is known to give a tolerably approximate estimate of what that cost will be. The extension from Picton to Goulburn is 81 miles, and it will cost about £688,500. The extension from Penrith to Bathurst is 111 miles, and will cost about £1,110,000. The northern extension from Singleton to Armidale will b about 70 miles, and this is in a less calculable state. The route has not been definitely surveyed, and the amount of work that will be necessary is not known. But, omitting any charge for tunnels and bridge girders, the out-lay would be about £705,000. These calcula-tions are exclusive of land and rolling stock charges which, of course, will have to be met,

The railway capital account therefore stands as follows. The expenditure on lines now in operation, amounting to 143 miles, has been £2,631,790 8s. 9d. This amount is made up of the following items:-Pitt-street tramway Great Southern Line, from Parramatta Junction to Picton Great Western Line, from Parramatta Junction to Penrith, and including Richmond branch Great Northern Line, including branch to Morpeth

Rolline stock 659,016 17 1 362,841 11 10 747,698 10 1 217,386 0 11 19,690 17 4

The expenditure on the three trunk lines to Goulburn, Bathurst, and Armidale, amoun to 262 miles, will be at least equal to this. The estimates for construction were given above To that we must add another £216,000 for rolling stock, and something for land and for the undetermined expenditure for the unsurveyed portion of the Northern line. This would bring the total quite up to £2,800,000. Adding, therefore, what has been spent to what must be spent to complete the lines to the points named, we have a total outlay of about points named, we have a total outlay of about five millions and a half on four hundred and five miles of railway, or at the rate of about £13,750 per mile, including everything. Con-sidering the quality of all the recent work, we cannot say that this is an extravagant expendi-ture. With a larger population and more developed resources, it would become a profitable expenditure, [Sydney Morning Herald, February 28.

THE TORRES STRAITS ROUTE.

By the return of the Souchays from her pioneer trip, a gentleman has arrived from Batavia to negotiate with the Queensland Government as to the constant maintenance of the service. If he is not possessed of plenipotentiary powers to conclude an arrangement, he will at least make himself acquainted with the views of the Colonial Government, and be able to report them fully to his own Government. It is necessary that the two Governments should come to a friendly understanding on the subject. They are both interested in the project, and can render each other mutual assistance

Some time ago we drew attention to the circular of Messrs, REYNST AND VINJU, and the project for a Batavian Steam Navigation Company therein contained. We have received further circular from the same firm, in which the project is expanded, and two separate steam services are proposed,—one from Batavia to Brisbane, and the other from Batavia to Melbourne and Sydney by way of Cape 1 ceuwin. This double project is too ambitious, and there is not yet scope for it. It is necessary in all enterprises to begin at the beginning, and to proceed by degrees. The first thing to be done is obviously to connect Brisbane and Batavia. To do that effectively will exhaust all the resources the two Govern

The simplest method of getting the service carried out is to offer a subsidy, and to invite tenders. It is quite possible that there may be adequate competition for a contract for a sufficiently long term of years. The Batavian Company may have several advantages in carrying out the service. The Messageries Imperiales might take the opportunity of extending their line to Australia. The P. and O. Company might even condescend to take notice of it. The Queensland Steam Navigation Company, and the Australasian Steam Navi-gation Company could either of them undertake the service to advantage, and some Melbourne proprietors of steam vessels might also be willing to tender. There is no necessity for forming a fresh company for the service, seeing that there already exist several companies carrying on operations in the neighbour-hood of the intended route. All that needs to be done is to discover which company will do the required work with the greatest economy.

Though requiring a subsidy in the first instance, the line may ultimately become a self-supporting one. It has to be ascertained, however, whether it will pay to bring down Eastern produce by monthly steamers. day or other Queensland may produce for itself its sugar, and coffee, and tobacco, and rice, and spices, but till that time arrives Batavia is the nearest port from which these supplies can can be dropped at the different ports en route Steamers will be able to put in at Somerset, at Cardwell, at Bowen, at Gladstone, and at Maryborough. The ports along the coast of Queensland are more readily accessible than most of those of New South Wales, and for thi reason there will be less concentration of trade in any one metropolitan port, and more disper in any one metropolitan port, and more dispersion of it among several ports. This geographical peculiarity is especially likely to affect the commercial arrangements connected with the importation of Batavian produce to Queensland. Instead of large cargoes of particular products coming to a central port, and being then distributed to outports, each steamer from Batavia would probably bring an assorted cargo, and drop portions of it at each port en route, enough to tions of it at each port en route, enough to supply local requirements and meet the want of the back country that draws its supplies thence. A line of steamers se engaged would be a trading line, and as such might become self-supporting, or nearly so. Whether any return cargo would be obtainable is some-what doubtful. The Batavians do not want wool, nor pineapples, nor bananas. Flou might sometimes be sent, but that will have to be fetched up from Adelaide, or drawn from the imported stocks in Sydney. The Queenslanders at present do not produce wheat enough for their own consumption, much less any for expert. consumption, much less any for export. The Batavians import coal largely from England, and in lieu of any other return freight the steamers might possibly load up with coal, if only to furnish their own depots along the kine. There are large coal measures in Queensland, and some of them are handy for shipping. Whether the quality will prove equal to that of the Newcastle coal remains to be determined. If it | their moral stature in the face of these great should prove so, Queensland may be able to carry on an export trade in coal. It is difficult, however, at any time to predict what will be the course of a trade that is purely prospective. But one thing is certain, and that is, that steam communication is sure to develop trade on any route on which trade is possible. Promptness and regularity of communication greatly stimulate the develop-ment of trade. On the Torres Straits route there exist such possibilities, and it is saf they will not long remain undeveloped. It is probable that a market for fat stock may be found in Java and at Singa-pore. But in that case the stock would not be shipped from the East coast, but from the Gulf of Carpentaria, or, better still, from Adam

If the Governments of Queensland and Bata to succeed in subsidising a mail service, as it is to be hoped they will, they may possibly apply via this colony for a contribution, and it might be well worth giving a moderate sum if the terminus of the line were made at Sydney. This is the natural terminus for This is the natural terminus, for Brisbane a present has not the requisite conveniences eithe for coaling or repairs. As a mail route from England, the Torres Straits line will not have any special value to this colony, but it will ex-pedite the postal communication with China. And it is important to fix the maritime supremacy of Port Jackson by concentrating here the various ocean postal routes. Our poverty owever, rather than our policy, is likely to be in the ascendant.

THE LOSS OF THE LONDON.

ANOTHER great sorrow has fallen on the com unities of Australia, and there is no city, or carcely any large circle, where it will not create the pangs of bereavement and kindred mourn ing. This loss of hundreds, many old colo aists or their dearest relations, although more than once our lot, stands out as an awful sala mity. In the presence of such a catastrophesilence is impossible, but all words are vain If the Press may ever give utterance to con dolence with the full conviction that it expresses the public sympathy, it is certainly now, when we tell our compassion for the large number of children who are made orphans—the many who weep for wives and husbands, for brothers and sisters, they expected soon to greet, but whon they will see no more.

The Bay of Biscay, notorious from all tim for fatal storms, under whose fury numberless ships have sunk and thousands of human being have perished, is the first great danger when the shores of England are passed. The passen gers had quitted Plymouth on the 5th January and on the 8th were in the midst of the gale whi was destined to overwhelm them. hardly have overcome the sea sickness which is the lot of many, although much accustomed to the sea, and which few escape when tossed The passengers could have be settled into their berths, or the children become accustomed to the motion, when they were in the centre of the storm. We can scarcely imagine a more fearful trial than the situation of these unfortunates, who found every hour the peril increase, and their fate opening with more or less clearness according to their susceptibility or their intelligence. The wreck of the Dunbar on our coast some years ago was who perished were unconscious of danger until the vessel struck upon the rocks. After a brief druggle, all was over. The spectators on that dreadful day had their feelings lacerated by the aspect of the scattered ruins, but the sufferers scarcely saw their danger before they ceased to ave. But here they had the ever increasing the visible termination of a five days' contest in an inevitable fate. We may, however, take and satisfaction from the conduct of all parties The clergymen on board were of different communions, but they felt and showed that they had one refuge, one consola-tion, and they mingled their prayers with their sympathies. We may be sure that at that awful moment in most minds every feeling gave way to the sense of a common misfortune and a single hope. We doubt not that all found a sorrowful alleviation in the sympathy We doubt not that all which has a thousand times shone out in gree alamities, and converted them into examples of moral courage and even divine heroism. We may be certain that the thoughts of many were divided between the home to which they se had destined them, and that in the bitter pane of relinquishing all hope of the first, they yet the humble expectation of the last. may feel certain that they did not limit the to the stern fury of the tempest, raging with blind and relentless force, but that they saw in the storm the Beckoning Hand of the ALMIGHTY, and heard the still small voice hope, its only possible consolation.

Like most great ship's companies, the pessengers of the London belonged to every proession and every walk of life. The season of sorrow made them for the time one in heart as in destiny. The Wesleyan clergyman and the "poor player," both one in one great strait and brotherhood. The last message of G. V. Brooke was an expression of his friendly nature. Others around him-and who shall sa he did not join them ?-expressed doubtless th same emotions in prayer for those who would terly. The loss of Dr. WOOLLEY will deprive the University of a ripe scholar and a large circle of a very kind man. His nature was open and his spirit free. All, however, seems elevated by the dignity and distinctness of his last hours when the Refuge of the child became the true

The names of the passengers are known widely in many instances, and several are connected with our largest families. Such is indeed, in this ancient colony compared with the rest, the common consequence of any great catastrophe, for families are here established. intermarriages wonderfully complicate them with one another. Clearly some of those who perish comprehend whole house-holds; parents and children met with one common fate. Probably they were persons coming out to settle in the colonies, whose design has been crossed by the destroying

The conduct of the captain and his officers seems to have been worthy of their intrepid profession. The memorial a seaman would most desire is that in the midst of confusion he preserved his self-possession-that he alleviated agonies he could not prevent; that he shared the danger it was his duty to combat, and that in this noble conflict he yielded up at once his spirit and his charge. Since there were no means of saving the passengers, he stayed with them in death There are aspects of human nature which seem to reflect upon all its members as well as to concentrate on some individuals the dignity and glory of the race. Men seem to enlarge crises, when all is lost but the force which sacrifices all for the sake of duty; and if we may confide in the description, this was the attilude in which those who best knew the peril waited o encounter its full force, and disdained to liv at any other price. The saving of some seems to have resulted from there being a boat of special qualities originally appropriated for their use in case of wreck. Their parting must have been indeed a moment of agony to all duty intervene must be admitted paramount. The acquiescence of the majority in those rights shows that even in that awful hour the equity of the preference founded on this proprietorship was admitted in a common danger, and thus a rush was prevented which must have made it impossible to save a single life, or communicate to the families of those who perished the full knowledge of their fate, or of that precious though mournful light which their conduct in peril has thrown about it. But who can help feeling that if a boat made to convey twelve persons carried nineteen, and lived in such a storm, a provision suitable to these voyages might have made the loss of life as small as the numbers who have escaped but regrets will avail us nothing.

There is still a consideration of greater delicacy, because involving an awful responsibility.

The excessive freight of such a ship, and its want of preparation for such a sea—the consequent leakage of the vessel, stoppage of the pumps, and the extinction of the fires, led by nevitable sequences to the loss of these hundreds of lives! Who did it?

(Sydney Morning Herald, March 16.

WHO IS RESPONSIBLE FOR THE LOSS OF THE LONDON?

THE awful calamity announced in our telegram of yesterday, which swept away from this world and all its endearments and hopes so many human beings, will force the colonies, if not Great Britain, to deal with the subject of over-freight as a question of life and death. It is impossible that in a civilised country such dreadful events should pass with a sentimental sigh. We owe, first, our condolence to the bereaved, our admiration to the brave and self sacrificing, our gratitude to Heaven for whatlation: but having paid this homage to worth and this commiseration to sorrow, we are bound to remember that as this is not the first of these stances, so it may not be the last. The few facts which reach us present the whole case in a clear and intelligible form. The London quitted the British coast at a season of storms, to cross a bay where tempests render navigation dangerous in a special de All this was perfectly well understood, but it was also known to the hundreds of passengers that a powerful steamer may venture over a troubled sea, and that, if properly prepared, it may, with no great aggravation of the common peril, make way with tolerable certainty. But the passen-gers had to confide in the owners, the surveyor, the insurance companies, and others in erested in the ship, that she would be properly laden and fitted for contingencies always pro-bable. What is the account? That the London was freighted with iron rails so far as to be incapable of rising to the waves; that her deck was burdened with coal, which found its way into the scuppers, and that when the storm had risen to its full fury, the water was up to the waists of the engineers, and the fires extinguished! What was the real state of the weather may be inferred from the course o the small boat that carried nineteen instea of twelve persons, and lived in this sea Was it possible a good ship, not overladen, could have perished in a conflict in which this small skiff was successful? The freight of railway iron, which has nearly caused the los of several of our best ships, and the dangerous disposal of the fuel, which has lost many more were sufficient to account for the disaster, and we need scarcely look further. The seamanship of the officers and men is of course unavailing when they have to deal with a mass of hard and heavy material, which could float only in fair weather. The laws of nature explain the catastrophe, and the rules of navigation were outraged by thus converting a good ship into a log. No doubt, the parties to the dreadful affair meant to send the passengers safely over the ocean; they had many examples of profit in crowding the decks and loading the ship to the point of danger, and they hoped all would the point of danger, and they noped an would be well! The consumption of hundreds would scon lighten the hold, and so, as the voyage drew nearer to a close, the appearance of the vessel would be more in harmony with a proper concern for her safety! So men reason, so they live down conscience, and incur the guilt of blood. So far as we can see, the passengers were as much sacrificed by the act been run ashore or scuttled at sea. The mer-chants, who are responsible, are men of repu-tation. They have large transactions with the world. They stand well upon 'Change. They "leave these things" to their clerks. They insure the ship and its freight. If these go to the bottom they are safe, and are able to purchase more; and if the gambling with the lives of men be successful, then they may net several hundreds by lading their ships to the water's edge. They can give the captain's widow a five-pound note to make up her loss. And what is murder? Who are those against whom the widow and fatherless cry to he The seaman, who is the unwilling agent, who yet puts his own life in the venture, and meets his fate with the courage of a brave man, or the millionaire, warm from his wine, who reads in his telegram that he has one risk less in merchandise, and one large item in his favour at Lloyds? We wonder if the consciences of men who do such things ever dream at night. Do they see the victims of their covetousness-like the long procession of assassinated kings in Macbeth—march past their troubled couches? march past their troubled couch Do they see on the wings of the black tempest the apparent spirits, who from out of the dark storm show their dripping forms, and turn upon them their reproachful gaze? Do they, when in their purple and fine linen they fare sumptucusly every day, find their feasts disturb by the thought that the stroke that destroyed the husband beggared the widow and the child? It would be a consolation that some remorse, if it did not foreshadow a future retribution, averted it only by the humiliation of a bitter repentance. These valuable lives have been lost to us to enable the owners to make a few hundred pounds. These kinsfolk of ours had paid for pounds. These kinsfolk of ours had paid for accommodation and safety a large amount. This is the business aspect of the question. And is there no redress in civil Courts? We exact from other persons a compensation—from the unskilful surgeon, the careless driver, the incompetent engineer,—and ought there not to be a demand of indemnity for an injury so fearful to scores of families?

When the proper precautions have been taken, and no needless risk incurred, the act of God must be met with fortitude; but is it not right and just that those who have taken from others the means of subsistence, as well as broken the dearest ties of life, should be compelled to make good the loss to their last farthing? We do not pretend that money could compensate, or that a sufficient penalty for the wanton sacrifice could be found in gold

The crime of murder, where there is a wilful disregard of known laws for the safety of life, may be fairly imputed, and a verdict of man-slaughter would justly place it only a little way down in the category of penaltics. We send an ignorant thief to a long imprisonment for some small offence—for stealing a few articles of little worth; but is it right to permit the safety of multitudes to be imperilled by avarice with impunity, or when death ensues to make no inquisition for innocent blood?

The colonies have the power to do much— by establishing a system of inspection and responsibility, and giving compensation to every passenger whose life has been put in peril by unlawful lading, and especially to the families of those who are lost. It is through the loss of money that the idolaters of money may be alone attacked, and by making it more profitable to do right than wrong. We are not aware that do right than wrong. We are not aware that a single ship sent out by the Commissioners with immigrants was ever lost through a neglect of proper precautions or overlading. The sea, violent as it is sometimes, rarely engulphs a good ship well manned and in pr

We have neglected the interests of our seamen too long. Their noble daring has given us maritime greatness, and few sailors will refuse to follow the fortunes of their ship. Indeed, the captains of merchantmen are often in a painful strait. They have wives and children pannul strait. They have wives and children looking to them for daily bread—their employment depends on their willingness to run all hazards. They may tremble, if not for themselves, at the probable consequence of going to sea in a bad ship with a bad cargo. Still go they must, or give up the only profession they know, and consign all belonging to them to construct. This last atternative they shipk from poverty. This last alternative they shrink from more than from death, and therefore they often

THE RELATIONS OF SPAIN WITH THE COLONIES.

THE Consul-General of Spain-Don EDUARDO SAN JUST—is about to return to his native country—we understand with a view of conferring with his Government upon matters of public importance. He has resided in this city or more than six years, and during that time has enjoyed the respect of a large circle of tlemen connected with the commerce of these seas. He will go home, therefore, richly fraught with all the information which it is possible to obtain in reference to colonial affairs, and be able to make such suggestions as may benefit mutually this colony and Spain. It appears that the trade with Spain, directly and indirectly, in articles imported into these colonies amounts to the considerable sum of £1,200,000. From the Philipine Islands receive a large portion of this merchandise, and it is distributed everywhere by the colonial shipping.

The establishment of the Consul-Generalship in this port is, of course, the natural result of its extensive commerce and its commercial resources. It forms also—especially in view of the development of the northern settlements—the most central position for trade. This metropolis will, indeed, be naturally the head-quarters of all the representatives of foreign Govern-ments. It is convenient for them to be in the vicinity of each other, and to exercise that weight which belongs to consular bodies wherever they exist. Their united authority must be great in all international difficulties, and their mutual surveillance will have a tendency to prevent that precipitation and rashness which sometimes have been attended with great dangers and disasters. The character of the consuls established at head-quarters in these colonies established at head-quarters in these colomes must be of very great importance to their countrymen who are employed in the business of the sea. The respect of the Government and inhabitants is conciliated, disputes are avoided, and ready access to all the colony may is offered to persons who are authenticated by their consuls. No parsimony could be more illusive than the employment of second-rate men for these functions—persons whe, by their want of education or narrow pre-judices, should be incapable of sustaining the junices, snouid be incapable of sustaining the honour of their flag and understanding when their national interests are really compromised, and in what way they might be best sustained. We have been, however, upon the whole fortunate in this colony. The French Government has long been represented by a gentleman of the largest information and the gentleman of the largest information and the most generous sympathies, and we are happy to think that in the Spaniard who is just to think that in the spaniard who is just about to quit us he has had a col-league of kindred spirit. The Consul of Belgium has worthily represented his noble country. It is, indeed, satisfactory, notwithstanding all the injuries done to commerce by the ignorant rashness of some public men, that its basis is so broad, and its ramifications are so extensive, as to defy their power to divert its channels or permanently diminish its volume. In the expansion of com-merce is included all that is beneficial to humanity—the great uprising of those nations that were long crushed under despotic systems of government is assured and guaranteed by the establishment of common principles and common law among all people.

The flag of the United States, of England, and France represent everywhere-liberty to the bodies and souls of men.

The only slaveholding nations now of any importance are found in the Peninsula; neither importance are found in the Peninsula; neither Portugal nor Spain will long hold slaves. Already we see that in Spain abolitionists are springing into activity and are assuming the ferms of action which have been so long familiar in Great Britain. It will not, as in England, be a struggle of half a century, but as they are the last nations holding men in bondage, the power of universal opinion will tell upon these with of universal opinion will tell upon them or unversal opinion will tell upon them will greater force; and before ten years are over in all human probability not one single slave will exist in any country whose faith finds its expression in the Bible or its symbol in the

We understand that the operation of selfgovernment in the Australias has been the subject of her very anxious scrutiny, and of constant ommunication. Though, certainly, looking at the details of our Government, there is much that is odious, it would be a great error to imagine that they have not admitted the exercise of industry, the expansion of trade, and th enjoyment of civil and religious liberty. The enjoyment of civil and rengious merry. I me truth is the original framework of the colonies was not of the most refined and well-balanced order. That this House is of opinion that, in order to promote economy in the public expenditure, as well as to afford facilities for the employment of colonial steamers in the carriage of the ocean mails, by such modification of existing or intended arrangements for that purpose as may obviate the undue preference for British steamers which appears to have arisen thereby, the subsidies granted for that purpose by the Legislature of this colony should in future be confined to an equivalent for the carriage of mails, and tenders for any such service be invited publicly in this colony. 2. That, consequently, this House is further of opinion that the vote serviced at by this House last seasion, on 20th April, 1866, in favour of steam communication by way of Panams, be rescinded. April, 1866, in favour of steam communication by way of Panama, he rescinded. Mr. Porster has on several occasions attempted to defeat this project, but the House, from 1858 until now, has with equal perseverance expressed its approval of the measure, and on this occasion, by a majority of 21 to 16, declined to retrace its steps.

But the motion which has evoked most public feeling, and exhibited the greatest disregard of mutual forbearance and charity, is that in reference to State-aid to religion. It was moved by Mr. Macpherson, and its object was in effect to revive schedule C of the Constitution Act, and thus to secure a permanent appropriation out of the consolidated revenue fund of the colony of £28,000 per annum towards defraying the expenses of public worship. The motion for going into committee was moved on the 27th Pebruary, and the debate was adjourned until the 16th March, when the supporters of State-aid had a majority in the House. The minority, however, determined that they should not gain a step in consequence of their industry and foresight in collecting their forces, and the contest resolved itself into a trial of physical endurance and talking power. The House sat from 3 o'clock on Friday, with short adjournments for refreshment, until 1 o'clock on the following day, when the debate was adjourned. There is not the alightest chance of a bill passing this session, or indeed of the question being finally dealt with in any way, and it is one upon which the Government are divided in opinion.

Beveral evenings have been occupied in the discus-and it is one upon which the Government are avaisable opinion.

Beveral evenings have been occupied in the discussion of motions in grandiloquent terms which are not likely to have any other effect than one of a gassous nature. These have related to the importance of reli-way extension which nobody doubts, and to the desirability of developing to the utmost our resources in which overybody acquisees.

Into case will be enclosed by a small iron palieveling, and the crection will be surrounded by a dwarf wall and tron railings, tenders for the crection of which have been invited. A better site for the statue could not have been invited. A better site for the statue could not have been chosen. We may mention here that the Hyde Park Committee are carrying out several improvements in the way of fencing in land in different parts of the Park, and planting ornamontal shrubs. The appearance of the Park in a few years will in all probability be very fine indeed.

Tenders for putting in the foundation of the new General Post Office were received last month, and Mr. Loveridge's tender having been accepted the work of exavating for the feundations is now in progress. The columns which stood in the front of the old building was pulled down, and theware now to be removed. A portion of the greund—that nearest Pitt-street—is at present occupied by Cooke, Zoyar, and Wilson's Clerch, but it is understood that the will not be required for some weeks. The plastering and joinery work necessary to render the new wing of the Australian Museum fit for occupation, tenders for which were accepted last month, is now in progress.

Satisfactory progress is being made with the enlargement of the Congreçational Church in Pitt-street. It will be in the recollection of our readers that the original design of the callagement, prepared by Mr. G. A. Mansfeld, envasors this tower, and other details of ornamentation, were rejected. The main features of the design, however, the points specified excepted, were adopted. Further consideration has resulted in the adoption of the original plan, accepts one made that the supplies of the measury, are getting on with the work with commendable speed.

The rates of Exchange for bills on London, at sixty days sight, are as follows:—Buying rate, 4 per cent. discount; selling rate, 1 per cent. premium.

The number of insolvencies continues above the average; but the aggregate amount of liabilities, except in one or two instances, is not of any amount. There has not been much activity in the share market during the month, but this is owing to the scarcity of dividend-paying shares in the market for sale. Bank shares are much sought after, and buyen preponderate, hence when sales are effected an advance on last quotation is generally asked. The fluctuations that have taken place are as follows:—Bank of New South Wales shares are inquired for, and would command an advance of 30s. on the price ruling last month, but even at this improvement sellers are not tempted to realise. Commercial Bank shares are indicated and advance noticed last month has been fally maintained. City Bank shares have been dealt in at an impovement of 7s. 6d. per share. Bank of New Zealand shares have advanced 20s. per share. In steam shares here has been very little doing. Australiasiun Steam Navigation shares are in better favour, and have improved 10s. per share, and at this price there are unuerable to the credit of profit and loss account. Illawarra Steam Navigation shares have changed hands at a decline of 2s. 6d. per share, between the half-yearly meeting, which was hald on the 21st February, when a dividend at the rate of 10 per cent, per annum was declared, and the sum of $8625 extried to the credit o

The quantity of gold dust delivered by the Escort during the month of February was 18,161 ounces, against 22.891 ounces for the corresponding month of 1865. The decrease on the month is, therefore, 4739 ounces, or 20 per cent. During the first two months of the present year the amount of gold dust received was 36,094 ounces. For the same period of the year 1865 the receipts reached 47,099 ounces. There is, therefore, a decrease of 19,975 ounces, or 23 per cent. on the yield of our gold-fields for the two months of this year. It will be observed that there is a decrease n the return of all our gold-fields, the decrease from he Western being 4911 ounces, or 20 per cent. from the Southern 5425 ounces, or 27; per cent.

The following are the amounts received from the Western, Southern, and Northern gold-fields during the months of January and February, 1865 and 1866:—

The Customs' revenue collected at the port of $644,267. For the same month of February amounted to $644,267. For the same month of the year 1865 the receipts were $43,660. The increase on the month is, therefore, $19,217, or 42 per cent. The amount received for ad valencem duties during the month was about $16,000, and to these, together with the increased duties, must be attributed this large increase in our Customs' revenue. During the first two months of the year 1865 the amount of duties collected at the port of Sydney was $26,342. For the same period of the present year the receipts have reached $153,407, which is an increase of $25,005, or 37 per cent. In favour of the present year.

If we include the other ports of the colony, and the Murray River Customs, the revenue for the two months of this year, amounted to $150,634, against $29,787 for the corresponding period of 1865, and which is equal to an increase of $25,1847, or $25 per cent.

THE NEW ZEALAND WAR.

PROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT | AUGKLAND, 7TH FEBRUARY SINCE General Chute's rapid and very successful march from Wanganui to Taranaki we have had no very startling news from that quarter. The people of Taranaki are delighted—as they justly may be—at his success, and look upon him as the Deus ex Muchina come at last to relieve them of all their troubles.

It is almost needless to say that there is great deal to be said on the other side. O General Chute's success there can be no ques-tion, but of his having done anything very startling or wonderful there may very fairly be doubts entertained. The work he has done, if it can be gone on with, will lead to the best results, but as a matter of fact it was not r difficult work as far so it has yet gone.

There was surprisingly little opposition made to the march, and no attempt was ventured upon having for its object the taking our troops by surprise, as has so often been successfully done before in this war. To judge from what General Chute has done, the conclusion would naturally be rather that the natives have lost spirit and the heart for further fighting, than that they have been overwhelmed by any new and wonderful stratagems, brought in by the new commander. the headlong manner of the General's advance was an aid to them in making up their mind to run away, but we have yet to see it tried their minds to stay and fight, as they did at up their minds to stay and fight, as they did at Waikato. We have as yet no news of the return march, which is anxiously looked for, as it is known that at least at one place on the route the natives are very strongly

The main intelligence from the East coast comes to us from Opotiki. Thirty-five native prisoners who have been tried by a military tri-bunal there for the murder of Mr. Fulloon and his party on board the schooner Kate, have just arrived in Auckland. They are sent to be tried over again by the Criminal Court of the colony military tribunal which tried them under martial law found about five-and-twenty of them worthy of death, and the rest of penal servitude or something of that sort, but on the decisions ing sent to the Governor he could not bring himself to sign the warrants on the evidence put on one side, and the Chief Justice is to try the men. I believe the chances are that more of them will, under the new reimportant new evidence is forthcoming now. is impossible even to guess whether the Overnor will insist upon reprieving them when sentenced or not. The delay in executing them has produced a bad effect at Opotiki, and much dissatisfaction was freely expressed by the natives who captured these men that they were not hung after being found guilty. It is, how-ever, always the way here, and there seems no help for it; we manage to fritter away our advantages when we have half ruined ourselves in getting them.

Now that these prisoners are at last removed the commander at Opotiki is at liberty to do something. Hitherto all his available force has been taken up in acting guard to these natives. He was on the day the last mail left Opotikilast week-preparing to attack the natives in a very strong position, called the Gorge by our people—the native name I do not know. It is expected that it will require hard fighting to get them out of the position, even if they succeed in doing so at all. I have every faith in the colonial forces ably commanded, and do not believe that they will fail to add one more to the victories which they have won on the East Coast against great odds.

The Provincial Government of Auckland has been empowered by the Council to accept the transfer of all the confiscated lands, on the conditions proposed by Mr. Stafford: The territory extends to about a million and three-quarters of acres, and heavily burdened as the estate is, in good hands it cannot but eventually prove a great benefit to this province.

The objection of the Thames natives seems to be gradually melting away before the perseverance of the gold prospectors, and there is a good hope of our soon seeing exactly what is to be the result of the examination of the Lower Thames Valley for alluvial gold diggings. Some of the gold found there in fair quantities is very fine, and if any extent of country is equally rich, there can be little or no doubt that the long-talked of gold-fields of Auckland may soon become a recognised fact instead of a mere

The men of the Waikato Regiments are about proceeding to law against Government for arrears of pay, which they claim owing to a blunder of the late Government of the colony. It will come to a heavy sum, I believe; but I do not see how the Government can escape paying it.

General Chute has completed his Wanganui campaign, for the present at least, by a return march to Wanganui from New Plymouth. The experience of his inland expedition was fully confirmed by his coast march. There was no want of enemies to oppose him, but there was no evidence of spirit on their part for the task. very few natives ever coming within rifle range of his troops. The Waria Pa, which was known to be strong, and to have long been a sort of head-quarters station of the rebels, was taken with but a few shots fired. One of our men was killed and four more or less wounded, while the dead bodies of four natives were found. Thus it is evident that the spirit of obstinate resistance is dying out at Wanganui amongst the rebels, who seem to be always now to give way if at at all pressed even by very inferior numbers. The other day a small party of the native contingent force went out to capture horses and fell in with quite a considerable body of the enemy. After a sharp struggle the rebels ran away, carrying their wounded, but leaving eight men dead on the field. Our allies lost one killed and several

What General Chate's intentions may be with respect to the future does not appear, but it is certain that his instructions have placed the rebels in a far worse position than they ever were before. They are now hunted away from the neighbourhood of our posts, and are in danger being shot whenever seen. This state things seems to be producing its effect upon them, as we have intelligence of one considerable section of an inland tribe coming in and tendering its submission with an offer to join the native contingent if the authorities choose It is not likely that such a step will be taken in case of accident; but the offer is to be looked upon as an indication of some little signi-

While upon the subject I may mention that it is generally understood that orders have come out by the last mail for the dispatch homewards of all the troops except three regiments. This, there will now be no difficulty about, as all every prespect of good success in the future.

parties are quite willing they should go as se as possible. The colonists can now fight their battles, and the continuance of the troops here only gives rise to vexatious differences of spinion between the colony and the Home Government about payment for them. It is understood that of the three regiments left in the colony only a single company will be placed in Auckland, as that is tite safe now. The mass of the forces will b at Taranaki, Wanganni, and Wellington.

From the tast coast we have news of the apture of three pas by Colonel Lyons and the ionial forces at Opotiki, but full particulars are not yet attainable. It is to be hoped that success will soon culminate in the full re-establishment of peace in the district, where a portion-probably one wing-of the 1st Waikato Regiment is to be settled forthwith on the confiscated territory, which includes some of the finest land in the colony.

The prisoners sent up from Opetiki now await their trial by the Supreme Court here. The preliminary examination brought out the fact, amongst others, that the evidence now obtainable is much more complete and damnatory than that produced at Opotiki before the courtmartial. The prisoners themselves are rather famous for implicating one another, which they do with excessive readiness, often taking care to ask a witness whether so and so was not seen doing the deed as well as the accused. In moshave the satisfaction of bringing it

A serious quarrel has arisen in the lower Waikato district between two sections of tribes, both of which were friendly and even useful to us throughout the war. The chiefs are respectively called Te Wheoro and Waata Kukutai and but for the timely interference of the ma gistrates of the district their quarrels would ertainly have led ere this to a small war on their own account with the arms supplied by the Government. Within the borders of the confiscated territory there is a small lake famous for its eels. The name of this lake is Whan-gape. It appears that Kukutai and his tribe claimed a right to the eel fishing, which right, however, had not been allowed by the stronger tribes who lived near the lake, and kept off all poachers ri et armis. When these tribes were driven off in the advance of our troops, Mr. Fox gave Te Wheoro and his people leave to live on the land by the lake, and, of course, to fish. Now that the land is all before him, Kukutai bethinks him of his old claim to the eels at Whangape, and determines not only to have a share, but to have all, and drove off Te Wheore and his people. He had actually levied forces, and gone up with the intention of assaulting the pa of his rival before the magistrate of the district arrived and managed to stop him. arrived and caused Kukutai's people to be disarmed at once, as not being trustworthy. This step will have a good effect no doubt, and it was highly necessary, as both the leaders were magistrates on full pay of the Government, and the lake belonged as little to one as the other, except by Mr. Fox's permission to Te Wheore and his people.

Auckland, February 28th THE Wanganui Campaign has sunk into low mutterings which may portend more fighting, or which may only mean that the natives wish to keep up a show of resistance to the last. It is certain that the troops are not likely to do a great deal more in the district in the way of long marches and regular operations.

The natives in that quarter have shown themselves quite bad enough to render themselves liable to be shot down wherever seen, and our own impression is that the next stage of preof thing. General Chute has indeed given a sanction to it which is not unlikely to be fied by his subordinates; and when we look at the character of the natives between Wanganui and Taranaki, it is hard to say what better plan is likely to be hit upon.

Mr. Stafford has the real difficulty to encounter in this as in most other directions, with native affairs. It is clear that the natives are cowed, and it is not difficult to see that the end is not very far off-so far as really important resistance is concerned, but quite a different thing to know how to deal with individual resistance and violence. The large confiscations in the Wanganui and Taranaki country are mere paper confiscations at present, and must remain so until a great deal more is done than has yet been attempted. Probably, Mr. Stafford, who is pre-eminently our practical man, will see that to place a population upon it, armed and determined to shoot every native intruder, is the most feasible method of getting rid of what is a not unreal

The case is different from that of Waikato, and yet it is not improbable that difficulties may yet arise there. A great deal of strong feeling and considerable threats of strong action have been brought about amongst some of the frontier settlers, owing to native encroachments. The circumstances are these; and they may give your readers an idea of some of our prac-tical difficulties here. The Waikato settlers— military—have received excellent land at the front. A peculiarity of some of this is that, good though it be, it contains the gum deposits which mark the former existence of kauri forests on the land. Since a sort of peace has reigned on our borders in Waikato the natives formerly in possession of these lands have been reduced to straits for money to buy clothing and sometimes food, and this peculiarity of these lands occurred to them. Small parties have, therefore, gone gum digging upon the lands allotted to the men of the Waikato regiments, and have brought in considerable quan tities of gum for sale to the settlements. course the men do not like this sort of trespass which is simply taking so much profitable em ployment from them—a thing greatly needed. The difficulty is, what to do? The civil magis trate looks upon it as a trespass, and the men not unnaturally as a theft—one, too, partaking of a forcible character, as the natives refuse to give way at the owner's order. This, it must be remembered, is in Waikato, where things are perfectly peaceable, and where the natives are in no position to fight. Any day, however, a row may arise from such a state of things and of course such risks would rise into cer tainties in a country situated as the Wanganut and Taranaki country is. Speaking of the Waikato regiments, the question of back pay and rations is still unsettled, and on several accounts it is a serious one. The men conceive they have a night to it, both in law and in equity, and public opinion goes with them in this. On the other hand, the Government is struggling to cut down expenses as low as possible, and every one sympathises with a desire so likely to affect his own pocket. If, however, the men go to law and they seem firm in their determination to de this—I believe Government will give in with-out a trial. The money will make all the difference to the men between a period of priva-tion—I fear severe—and getting comfortably over the critical period of settlement, with

On the East Coast there has not been very much done. There, as at Wanganui, the natives seem afraid to make a stand against the lilities will lose the whole district to the natives colonial troops and native contingent. Colonel Lyons's attempts to reach them have been frement of late, but for the most part useless, as ey invariably make off and leave empty pas. Their stronghold at the place known as the Gorge has been deserted, although of great strength, and in all probability the 1st Waikato Regiment will have to settle down on the confiscated land, with arms in their hands, and the full intention of maintaining their position ries armis against all comers.

I think I mentioned already that Opotiki was to be the destination of one half the 1st Waikato Regiment. It will muster strongly, as a large number of its men were in the Transport Corps, and are now being sent back to their regiment. The other wing will be stationed and settled at Tauranga-so that the 1st Waikato Regiment will have nothing whatever to do with the country from which they take their name. Colonel Haultain, the Defence Minister, is now at Opotiki, and is supposed to be making arrangements for the settlement of these men.

The public dinner given to General Chute, at Wellington, is accepted as Sir George Grey's note of triumph at the success of the war policy about which as Cameron, at Wanganui, Auckland, March 6. about which he quarrelled with General

From Taranaki, our latest news is by no means so satisfactory as of late. The effects of General Chute's march have not, it would seem, been all good. The natives were cowed and scattered by him in his advance, and their crops and settlements utterly ruined; but assuredly they could not be said to be subdued as they would not fight. Unfortunately, the usual difficulty was felt in drawing a distinction between friends (Friendly Maories) and foes, and about equal disasters seem to have attended each party. The consequence is, that a good many people who called themselves, and were called by others, Friendly Natives, have gone over to the enemy. This is serious, not so much on account of the numbers who have joined the enemy, as because the defection of a party at all at this time shows how unreasoning the resistance is likely to be. So far as I can judge, the war at Wanganui and Taranaki is likely new to degenerate into a very desultory sort of thing, and may last for years unless proper measures are taken at once Methinks that I suggested, to put a stop to it Methinks that I suggested, in a recent letter, what seemed to me the only way of putting a stop to it, and this recent view of matters from the Taranaki country only tends to confirm what I then said.

A number of the Wanganui settlers have petitioned the Government in the most urgent manner not to withdraw the troops from the neighbourhood, as they were in constant expectation of murderous attacks from the rebels. This is a good illustration of my meaning in saying that only a regular system of special colonisation will effect anything in the confiscated territory for many years to come. The men petitioning are the regular settlers; and although I dare say some will cry out against their cowardice in doing so, yet if we consider that they are not a dense population, that the forest is at hand on nearly all sides, so that a secret enemy can have no difficulty in getting close to them, and that they have wives and families whom they are afraid to leave for an hour alone, we shall see that there is some reason in their petition. Of course this is just what could be provided for by a special population. In the Waikato at present the men are by no means nervous, and would, I am hold their own against any attempts to drive them out. The same sort of population at Wanganui would do as much, but of course the principle would require to be to keep the came too near.

Another most unpleasant complication has shown itself at Tauranga. Your readers will remember the great Tauranga pacification of Sir George Grey, how, after the decisive vic-tory gained over them at Teranga by Colone Greer, they yielded up so readily all that was asked of them,—how, in consideration of this and sundry other noble acts, some of which the punishment imposed upon them was all but nominal. They were to give up one-fourth of their land, and keep threefourths, whose value would be vastly increased by the loss of the fourth to Government. In addition to all this, we fed them and petted them, supplied them with seed wheat, and seed potatoes, and found them a splendid market for what vegetables they could raise. Neveral times however, they have could raise. Several times, however, they have shown doubtful signs. They sold readily about fifty thousand acres of the land left them, and received £1000 as a first instalment of the unusually liberal price offered them for the land. They had now nominally one half, and we had one half of the land.

Maories at a distance, or to shoot them if they

The other day, however, Colonel Haultain, the Defence Minister, when at Tauranga, with a view to the final settlement of half the 1st Waikato Regiment, called a meeting of the natives to have a final understanding about the oundaries. They came readily enough, and very coolly told the Minister that they had changed their minds, and would not now consent to give up this (confiscated) land. He then asked, "What about the fifty thousand acres bought and partly paid for?"

They found some difficulty in answering the question, but shame is not a sensation greatly in vogue among the Maories, and the leading chief soon found presence of mind enough to say that he was sorry, but he and his friends had not consulted everyone interested when they sold the land, and now he would not consent to its passing out of their hands, as some of them objected. He did not say that any one objected to the share of the £1000 already

The Defence Minister commanded his temper, and sent them home with the injunc-tion to think the matter well over, for the land bought and the land confiscated he meant to by force, if not by less unpleasant If he had ordered the chief Enoka (Enoch), who was chief speaker on the occa sion, into close custody-martial law is still in force at Tauranga-a good effect would, I feel confident, have been produced. As it is, I believe we shall have to fight for our land there yet. Of course, we shall do so if it is necesery, and win it too; but it is very unpleasant to see no end of this sort of thing.

The worst of it is that some of our own people are to blame quite as much as the natives. More than one man of position and money here is known publicly to have paid the Maories money for parts of the very land which they had sold to the Government. One bought several thousands of acres and gave a high price for it, probably in the hope that Government would require to buy them out at a still higher

As yet nothing more is known of this matter, but it looks threatening. At the worst, we

The Daily Southern Cross supplies the following items of news

Two native meetings of considerable importance have been held lately in the I hames district. A correspondent dating Kanastranga, February I, says — In my last letter I informed you that Mr. Mackay, Uvil Commissioner, had arrived here for the purpose of holding meetings of the natives. The first of them took plaze at Kanastranga on the 21st of January, when a considerable number of natives were present, mostly from the sottlements on the estuary of the Thames. I understand that Mir. Markay was well received, as he always is, by the Kanastranga people. The next meeting took place at the Pisko on the 27th of January. I think I nentuned in a former letter that a large number of the Waikatos had come down the river, and Mr. Macky took measures, by rending messengers in all directions, to get as many of them together as possible. William Thompson, however, did not choose to put in an appearance. He has been in the Thames valley for some time, and I am informed has been acting as a kind of Pal Marire priest, making converts, and ordaining priests by laying his hands on their heads, and intoning something or other. When he heard that Mr. Mackay was coming, he went up the river in his cance, his conscience having, I suppose, made a coward of him. However, a large body of Waikatos assembled at the Kiripchi settlement, who were warned by Mr. Mackay of the consequence of making any disturbance. One of them said that as the Waikato had been taken from them, they would have to make cultivations to some of the land on the Thames belonging to Kuropeana, and Mr. Mackay answered that all who chose to go back to the Waikato would get land appertioned to them. He also told the Thames chiefs that if any of them wont to Taranaki to fight they did so at the risk of losing their land, as the Waikato had done. I have no doubt that the interview will strend the meeting."

SKIRMISH WITH THE REBELS AT WAIKARE

Per the brig Maggie, from Hawke's Bay, we have papers to the 18th February.

From an "extra" of the Hawke's Bay Times of that date we quote as follows—

(From our corn (correspondent.)

Wairon, January 16, 1806.

The expedition which left the Taua on Friday pushed on towards Waikare Means. When, within four or five miles of it, as might reasonably have been expected, they fell into an ambuch at a place called Kaishaka, and it is matter of astonishment that any returned to tell the tale. As it is, the Hau-hans may dry up for ever as a dighting people.

The place, selected with every care, consisted of a pass communded on two sides by chilfa, and at the far end by a trench, from which, if properly defended, not a soul could have escaped.

The Government natives had no suspicion of what was instore for them, and it was not till fairly ambushed that they perceived their danger, from the cross fire that was failing amongst them. Having but little knowledge of the hill passes to the Lake, they knew nothing of what was about to befall them. It is impossible to say why the Hau-haus made so little of their opportunity. They fired at random—hid in the form, lifted their gams above their heads, and snapped them into the valley. As it was, eleven of the Government natives were killed, and it is said upwards of twenty wounded, including Haka Whanga, who was twice shot through the leg.

Drawing back they surrounded the pass, killing twenty-number.

Some men and women were cuptured, and deeply I regret to say that four prisoners, namely, Huru, Huru, te Tautene, his nephow, Matenga (a mere lad), together with two men of the Uriwers, were slaughtered the following day (Saturday) in cold blood, with the sanction, it is said of Major Pracer.

This I cannot credit, as it would be an everlasting dis-strate were it true.

From papers by the Kate Waters, Captain Calder, we add a few extracts, as follows.

The Contracts, as follows.

The Sinthers Cross of 15th Pobruary states that it is an underiable fact that there exists a certain amount of distress amongst the labouring class of Auckland. We are not of the party (it adds) which is anxious, as by some curious process of reasoning a party always does appear to be anxious, to make the worst of this. We deep adjust that all the immigrants are starving because We hear the complaints of a few who are out of work, probably for some very excellent reason. We are not ready to begin a lament over our condition because we are accessed by a beggar on the street; and we do not at once see in his attitude and appearance the painful signs of starvation so evident to some very sharp eyes amongst us. Yet, in spite of this, we see and know that a good deal of what may, without a sersiming of the expression, be called "discress" does exist amongst our labouring class at pressnt. There are a good many decent and good labourers who are unable to get constant employment, and the necessity which exists for wasting much time in looking for what employment they do get is productive of a certain amount of distress. But we would not be misunderstood by this word, we do not mean absolute want, we hardly mean more than a loss of some luxuries in which have when the summer, it must be remembered; and there is a danger that a stagnation in the labour market, which in this which seems to us the serious side of the question, because we do not believe that for those able and willing to work there is just now any great risk of want. It is when the short days come, and the bad weather start in the treven and hood of my mean that the honest workman may suffer want a

We hope the fidelity of these natives may now be relied upon. Hare professes himself willing to join the Native Contingent, or, in any way in which he may be asked, to make himself useful meliping to re-establish law and order among the rebelious tribes. CAPTURE OF MORE OF THE RUNAWAY PRISONERS.—Major Edwards, the Resident Magistrate at Olaki, arrived in town on Tuesday, bringing intelligence of the retaking of five more of the Moarr prisoners who secaped from the bulk Manukau on the night of the 21st ultimo. These five were captured by a small party of "friendlies" led by a man named. Hoepa. The "friendlies" were proceeding along the beach at Pakakariki, on the morning of Monday last, when they espiced some of the runaways. They at once gave chase, and captured five, when they marched of in triumph to Major Edwards. The Major ordered them to keep a strict guard over their prisoners, and, after several fruitless efforts to find a cart in which to forward them to town, rode in himself, and informed the authorities of what had taken place. The Native Commissioner, on bearing the intelligence, set out for Otaki, and, on arriving at Pakakoriki found the prisoners askly housed in an outualling of Mr. Kikin's cetablishment. Ultimately a cart was procured, and they were brought into town hast night.— #Felimaton Independent, February S.

MILITARY MOYEMERTS.—The steamer Wellington, which arrived in the Manukau yesterday, brought up from Taranaki nine officers and 240 men of the 68th Regiment, who, upon being landed, were at once marched to the camp, Otahubu. The detachment is under orders to embark for England at the earliest possible opportunity. General Chute is reported to have again returned over

EIGHT HAU-MAUS KILLED AND SEVERAL WOUNDED.

ON Friday or Saturday last a few of our men, principally Kupapas, left the camp near Waingengoro, with the intention of capturing horses, baving a brush with the enemy, or etipoing any other bit of fun that might tum up. During the sacursion they fell in with the enemy in considerable force, and a sharp action immediately commenced. Eight Hau-haus were left dead on the field. But from the paucity of men on our side—although we held the field and gained a complete victory—the enemy were able to carry off their wounded. The loss upon our side is, we regret to say, rather severe. The brave Aperahama, a chief of Nguhapu (Ensign N.C.), was shot through both highs. I wo Kupapa were killed, one of them was Wi Pekapeka, who was wounded at the battle of Moutoa, and for his brave conduct there received a gratity from the Government. One Kupapa, named Piriti, was taken prisoner. Hangana Times, February 6.

THE MAORIES ACCUSED OF THE MURDER OF THE REV. MR. VOLKNER.

The five natives accused of the murder of Mr. Volkner, who have been for some months peat in custody at Opothi, but who were not brought before the court-martial, arrived in Auckland yesterday by the steamer Sturt, from Opethi, The following are the names of the men:—Mohomoho, Herentia Kahupaes, Hakaraia te Rahui, Paora Tais, and Penetita. The first-named is a closely tatoood man, of about 46 years of age, who, it is said, acted as commander of the party that committed the murder, Kahupaes and Te Rahui are said to have been actively engaged in the banging of Mr. Volkner; Paorl Tais and Penetita, it is stated, drank the blood of the murdered man, the former having been standing in the pulpit of the church with Kersopa when Mr. Volkner's head was brought in. All the prisoners are rather unfavourable specimens of the Maori.

The prisoners were brought up before his Worship about 2 o'clock, on an information charging them with the nurder of Mr. Volkner, laid by Mr. H. T. Clark, Civil Commissioner, ht Tauranga. Mr. Brooffield stated that he appeared for the prosecution, and would ask for a remand until Saturday, as the principal witnesses had not arrived from Opethi, and he expected them before that day.

His Worship granted the remand until 10 o'clock on Saturday, when the preliminary examination will be commenced at the new gaol.—Southern Cross, February 27.

PPPS'S HOMGOPATHIC COCOA.—Homosopathic Practitioners, and the medical profession recognity, recummend COCOA as being the most healthful of all beverages. When the doctrine of homosopathy was first introduced into this country, there were to be obtained no preparations of cocoa either attractive to the taste or acceptable to the stomach; the nut was either supplied in the crude state, or so unskiffully manufactured as to obtain sittle notice. J. EPPS, of London, homosopathic chemist, was induced, in the year 1839, to turn his attention to this subject, and at length succeeded, with the assistance of elaborate machinery, in being the first to introduce an article pure in its composition, and so refined by the perfect trituration it receives in the process it passes through, as to be most acceptable to the dedicate stomach.

BREAKFAST BEVERAGE.

For general use, RPPS'S COCOA is distinguished as invigorating, with a grateful amouthness and delicious arona. Dr. Hassell, in his work 'Pool, and its Adulterations,' says — "Coces contains a great variety of Important nutritive principles—every ingredient necessary to the growth and sustenance of the body." Again, "As a nutritive, Cocoa stands very much higher than either Coffee or Tea." Directions.—Two teaspondus of the powder in a breakfast cup, filled up with boiling water or milk. Tin lined, ;-1b., j-1b., and 1-b. Packets. Sold by Grocers, Confectioners, and Chemista. Rach Packet is labelled J. CLEANLINESS.—A Stove most Brilliantly Polished in two minutes, for less than One Farthing.

W. G. NIXEY'S celebrated registered BLACK READ, a new domestic discovery. Cannot be wasted, and is a preservative of furniture from the injurious effects of the common articles now in use, as it creates no dust, and requires comparatively no labour.

Bold everywhere, in solid blocks, 1d, 2d, 4d, and 1s. The advantages of this excellent chemical preparation are great saving of time, cleanliness of application, smallness of quality required, and the prevention of waste, dust, and its destructive consequences. Further, it ultimately produces a pure metallic coating of a high degree of brilliancy and durability, reflecting both light and heat. DISTRICT OF LIVERPOOL PLAINS.

1. The BARRABA RUN, togethe with 2500 head of

MORT AND CO. have been instructed by Mrs. John Terry Hughes to sell by public auction, at the Reoms, Pitt-street, at 11 o'clock,

The following valuable pastoral properties:

1. The BARRABA RUN. situate on the Manila River, to both banks of which it has a frontage of about 8 miles, as well as being watered by Hawkins and Spring Creeks, two never-failing streams. It comprises about 30,000 acres, consisting chiefly of fine-open undulating box-ridges, with apple-tree flats along the banks of the river, and creeks;

(ALL GOUD COUNTRY FOR BITHER CATTLE OR SHEEP), and abundantly watered. It is surrounded by those well known runs, Burindi, Tarsels, Cobadah, de., the properties of Meesre. Allan, Cheenbrough, Crowley, Adams, and Hoskisson. Barwaba is distant only about 69 miles from Tanworth, and 150 miles from Maitland, so that it is within easy access of our best markets for fat stock.

The IMPROVEMENTS consist of superintendent's cottage, with detached hitches, &c., two stores, barn, three first-class cultivation paddocks, a horse paddock, large stock-yards, and a large sheep yard.

With Harasha, will be sold about

The Woolshed has hitherto been used chiefly as a cattle property, but sheep have been recently depastured upon it and have done well. It is a good sound sheep run, has but very little stock upon it compared to the graining enpablities, and from its preximity to market is well worthy of attention.

LIVERPOOL PLAINS. That well-known compact Station
FURINDI.
Situated on the head of the MANILA RIVER, a tributary of the NAMOI. Together with 7816, more or less SHEEP, and 400 to 509 HEAD OF CATTLE.

Terms of Payment.—25 per cent, cash; the residue by ap-proved bills at 6, 12, 24 months, secured upon the property by way of mortgage, bearing interest at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum.

ORT and CO. have received instructions to sell by public auction, at the Rooms, Pittstreet, at 1] o'cleck, on TUREDBY, 3ed April, That well-known, compact, and healthy station BURIND, situate on the head of the Manila River, in the district of LIVERPOOL PLAINS, and distant about twelve mise from the post town of Barraba. It adjoins the stations of Messers, Chesselvough, Parnell, Hooke, Hoakisson, and Mrs. Hughes; is exceedingly well grassed and watered by about SIX MILES of the MANILA RIVER, and several large waterholes and never-failing springs. It is now in excellent working order.

The improvements on the head station are—a cottage, of five rooms, kitchen and store, shingled; and overseer's hut with four rooms; shingled woolahed and lever peas; two hars, stock-yards, grass and cultivation peddocks, and four sheep stations, with yards.

"." Stores, farming implements, team of bullscks, dray, and 12 horses, &c., to be taken at a valuation.

With the Burindi Station will be sold the following stock—

SHEEP.

7816, ditto, sheep. CATTLE. CATLE.

400 to 500, more or less, cattle.

. The sheep are of an excellent description, warranted sound and healthy in every respect, and the wool realises a high figure in the London market.

To those on the look out for a Liverpool Plains station, within WERKLY COMMUNICATION of SYDNSY, and of easy access to the markets, the sale of Buriadi affords an opportunity of securing a most desirable one.

DISTRICT OF BURKE, GULF OF CARPENTARIA.

The absep are free from all contagious diseases. They are of very superior quality, and yield a heavy clip. Great expusse has been incurred in introducing the choicost rams procurable; amongst the present stock to be sold with Tenterfield are 3 pare herd Rambouillet, and 4 pure German, all imported. About one-half the Ram flock are young sheep, the progeny of the imported rams and stud ewes that have been carefully salected. Others are level from the colebeated Glengullan, Resenthal, and other first-class flocks. A large proportion of the Tenterfield clip averaged in London, in the last Angust mise, over its per lb., the wool being only hand-washed. The sheep have been regularly classed, and the rejected and old cases sold off every year.

The cattle are very quiet and superior. No expense has been spared in supplying the herd with bulls from the best herds in the colony.

_*O The purchaser of this station will have the option for leasing for live years at a rental of £100 per annum, the 2000 ACRES OF PURCHASED LAND adjusting the town of Testerfield, and upon which are extensive grass and cultivation paddocks.

CLIFTON.

Clifton adjoins and lies to the westward of Tenterfield, on the Tenterfield Creek. The head stations are about twenty miles apart. The country is thickly grassed, and well watered in all seasons. It consists altogether of undulating open forest country and well shaltered ridges.

The run contains an area of about 59,000 aguare acrea, and its estimated grasting capabilities are 25,000 shasp and 800 castia, and their yearly increase in all seasons.

The improvements comprise, at the head station, an excellent verandals cottage of ten rooms, well planned and finished, garden of nearly 21 acres, well-stocked with various kinds of English first trees, now in full bearing, whereard, in a high state of culture, also various kinds of English fruit trees, now in full bearing, viscopard, in a high state of culture, also vegetables, shrubs and flowers in prefusion, and some English forcest trees. A bill for transferring the control of the colony to the Blome Government has been read a first time in the Janasica House of Assembly. A despatch had been read from Mr. Cardwell to Governor Eyra, expressive of the concern of Har Majosty and the Government at the rebellion, deploring the barbarities and loss of life, and recognising with satisfaction the promptness with which the authorities, the navial and military officers, the nables niang with satisfaction the promptness with which toe authorities, the naval and military officers, the police, volunteers and citizens, and maroons had combined for the preservation of order.

COURT OF QUEEN'S BENCH, WESTMINSTER.

BEFORE the LORD CHIEF JUSTICE, Mr. Justice BLACK-BURN, Mr. Justice MELON, and Mr. Justice BLACK-BURN, Mr. Justice MELON, and Mr. Justice LUSH.

WINSOR V. THE QUEEN.

This was the part-heard case of the woman under sentence of death for child unarder, and on whose behalf a write of error has been brought to revurs the judgment, on the three-fold ground—that the jury on a former trial were unlawfully discharged; that her further trial was improperly postponed until the next assines; and that the evidence of a fellow-prisoner was improperly received against her. Upon the argument yesterday, however, it appeared to be settled that the latter was not a ground of error, and that the second point virtually resolved itself into the first.

The facts, as stated in the record, and which we set out fully jesterday, came in substance to this—that the two wemen, Wincor and isarris, were indicted jointly, and were put upon trial together at the last Spring Assizes for Devon. The jury were locked up about 7 o'clock on a Saturday evuning, and a few minutes before 12 (the commission day for Cornwall being on the Monday) they declared they were not likely to agree, upon which they were discharged. The two women were brought up at the next assizes, when Winner alone was put on her trial, and, Harris being examined against her, she was convicted.

The Judgee unanimously decided the following points—

1. That the discharge of the jury is any criminal case reast wholly in the discretion of the pressing Judge. 2.

That, if he is in any case wrong in the exercise of that discretion, it neverthelesse cannot be reviewed. 3. That, in the particular case, the learned Judge was right; and that the circumstance of the approach to be pressing a long, and the the probability of agreement by the jury, and the question whether a p

THE LATE MR. GUSTAVUS VAUGHAN BROOKE.—In the list of passengers by the ship Lundon, foundered at sea, that was published in our impression yesterday, appear the names of "Mr. Vaughan and Miss Vaughan." These were really Mr. Gustavus Vaughan Brooke and his sister. The tragedian had, when taking his passage, omitted part of his name, in order to obtain privacy and that repose during the voyage which was necessary to recruit his health and viguur before commencing a long engagement which he had undertaken with Mr. Coppin, of Melbourne. How he went down with the ship, in which his sister also perished, is described in another column. Mr. Brooke was 85 years of age, and was born at Dublin, the son of a gentleman of property. He was educated for the bar, but neglected his profession for that of the stage. His first appearance was a William Tall, in 1833, when he was fifteen years of age. He was successful, and till 1847 played in most of the great provincial cities. In 1845 he came to Lundoa, and appeared as Othello, at the Olympic Theatre. Two years afterwards he was equally successful with the sams character in New York. In 1853 he was back in London, whence, after an extended professional tour, he returned to Auserica, and from there went to California and Australia. In each place he met with verying success, but won much reputation—in Australia most. Having come back to the old country, he was induced to once more accept an engagement at Melbourne, and the going out to fulfil it has found a watery grave in the Bey of Blecay.—Times, January 18.

THE WEATHER AND THE CROPS.

The wheat harvest in the Tunnit district has but just been completed; and the visid of wheat has proved very large. Taking the whole district, it is calculated that the sentent will average from 25 to 30 bankels per acre. At the same time the grain is very fine, fall, and plump.

Towards the end of last month the weather was exceedingly warm, the sun being very powerful. Since then cloudy days, thunder storms, and occasional showers have intervened, and rendered the weather emarkably pleasant. The nights and mornings are particularly fresh and cost. This weather may be said to range throughout the whole of the coast districts, and more or less upon the table lands. In Braidwood, Goulburn, Bathurst, and New England, after experiencing a succession of oppressively hot days during the end of last month, the weather changed, and since then cool, cloudy days, heavy storms of wind, and sceasional thunder showers have broken up the summer, and already winter has been heraided in by the cold air of the night and early morning.

As we get further back to the west from the coast range, accounts become more conflicting, and although it is achonologically and the summer of the night and early morning.

STATE OF THE COUNTRY.

STATE OF THE COUNTRY.

That the comparative failure of the wheat-cop, following upon the destruction of the grain in previous years by rus, should have caused considerable distress in those districts where the failure was the most complete, was only to be anticipated. Luckily, these districts are but few, and although the misery and destruction in them are great, we can but be thankful that these are not entended, as it was once feared they would be, over a large area of the colony. We have mentioned in preceding summaries that in the large agricultural districts of the Fish River and O'Connell Plains, within a short distance of Bahurat, great distress existed. We now give, from the Bathurst Times, an account of the difficulty that is now threatening the district. That paper says:

Fains, within a short distance of Balturst, great distress existed. We now give, from the Balturst, Trees, an account of the difficulty that is now threatening the district. That paper says:—

The tales of distress which reach us from various parts of the district are toe numerous and toe well authenticated to permit of their longer ignored. The drought has done its work, with such tatal precision at every homestead, that, to hundreds of families around hathurst, the approaching inster presents a terrible aspect of poverty and wretchedness, if not of black starvation. The loss of crops is not the only evil, for that forms but one item in the sum of difficulty we have to deal with. If it were merely with food until they were in a product propile were to be supplied with food until they were in a product of propile were to be supplied with food until they were in a product of propile were to be supplied with food until they were in a product of the energy ency; but the drought which runned the harvest kas left hundreds of small settlers without seed to commence another season, and the scarcity of feed arising from the aridity of the soil has caused such more interest of the start change all live stock, that farmers even who have some little grain have neither horses nor bullocks to plough their land. It is not one difficulty, herefore, but a host of difficulties that have to be battled with, for troubles always multiply each other; naugurative or each of the start change of weather set in. But what is to become of the meanity of the start change of weather set in. But what is to become of the sent the when this temporary supply is exhausted. The matter is really too serious to be set asked, and it becomes an imperative duty in book it fairly in the face. These people cannot be allowed to starve, yet they certainly will not be able to exist without assustance, and here a superior of the start of the juvenile mortality of the past two months in many portions of the interior has been greater than for some considerable time past.

We have mentioned that cattle stealing was prevalent, and that distress was made the excuse for the commission of crime; but another offence, for which the same excuse cannot be offered, has also become more frequent than usual. Horse stealing is being carried on throughout all parts of the coverty more or less; and almost daily reports of offences of this character reach the police. It has also become a regular means of recruiting an empty purse, to stop the mad, rife the passengers, and open the mail bags; and as th's is done sometimes in one part of the country, sometimes in another, with attendant circumstances of bungling that show an amateur first effort, it is to be supposed that each offence is committed by different individuals, and that this is adopted as the asset style of highway robbery. The Inspector-General of Police has reported to the Government that, owing to the distress in the interior and other causes, he anticipated a large increase of crime during the winter, and recommends the introduction of a bill making highway robbery with arms a capital felony.

One instance may be given as showing the value of agricultural property in the interior, and the benefit that free selection has conferred upon the people. A free selection of airty acres of good agricultural land, at no great distance from Bathurst, was sold at auction to the highest bidder, for £71. The fortunate selector had given 25 per cent. or £15 to the Government, and had laid out £400 in improvements on the land, so that the auctioner's hammer showed his investment of £415 to be worth £71.

THE PASTORAL INTEREST.

THE PASTORAL INTEREST.

The question of the Pastoral Reserves from free selection having been for the moment indiden from sight by being confided to the care of a select committee of the Assembly, another stack upon the tenants of the Crown has been made, on the ground that they have sent in applications for excessive purchases of land under their pre-cupative right. This has resulted in nothing except to so far startle the Secretary for Lands as to induce him to refuse a large number of the applications, and to hold others in abeyance pending inquiry. There is no doubt that the squatters are taking every means that the law allows, them to secure themselves from the inroads of the free selector. What with reserves from conditional purchases, and the exercise of the pre-emptive right, a great deal has been done. But more than this; on most of the finer runs which, possessing tracts of agricultural land, are liable to be invaded by the free selector, sheep are being substituted for cattle, and where there are now sheep, the number is being largely increased, so as to eat up the grass round the selections, and prevent the selector from encroaching and keeping a small herd of cattle at the cost of the squatter on whose run he has pitched down.

It is with regret we say that more rain is yot wanted in pitched down.

It is with regret we say that more rain is yet wanted in the far western interior. The late rains brought up a fine spring of grass, but the numbers of stock now on the move are so great, that upon all the main lines of communication from one part of the country to another, the young grass was eaten off as soon as it showed, and now, after a few weeks was caten off as soon as it showed, and now, after a few weeks of hot dry weather, the country is as here as ever. In other places, where the grass has had time to grow and harden there is plenty of good, rich feed, and the stock are rapidly improving in condition. Sheep are being brought back to stations previously deserted, and cattle are being mustered for the purpose of ascertaining the gaps caused in their ranks by drought, and to fetch them in from the long distances to which they have been scattered.

But there are places in the interior that have been as yet but barely reached by the rains, and the accounts that come to us from them are anything but encouraging. The droughing weather that has prevailed in Sydney for the last fertilight, and which appears destined to continue until the summer has regularly broken up, will no doubt, before very long, reach far into the whole interior, and before the winter sets in give promise of abundance of feed and water for the stock. With reference to one of these portions of our territory—part of the Lower Murrumbidgee district—we may quote the account given by the Wagga Waggs Express. That paper says—

The rains with which we were visited a few weeks since were

The rains with which we were visited a few weeks since were an incalculable blessing, and were the means of saving an immense amount of stock from absolute starvation, but they were not by any means either copious or general enough to satisfy the wasts of the country, or to relieve the station-holders of all apprehensions for the lature. OTHER MINRS.

The deed of settlement of the Western Kerosene Oil Company has been signed by 15,625 shareholders out of 20,000 shares, and on the 21st ultimo three directors were elected. The business of the company will now be proceeded with without delay.

The Hartley Kerosene Oil and Paraffine Company commenced making oil on an extensive scale on Tuesday, 13th instant. Professor Watt, Mr. Nicolle, C.E., and Mr. S. Sammel were present, and the result of the first working was most satisfactory.

Specimens of cannel coal from land at Mount Kembla have been received in Sydney to be analysed.

At the Leely Copper Mimes a new and apparently extensive lode has been discovered. It has been named "Nicholas" Lede." A shaft, between four and five fathous, has been sunk upon it, and a lode of black ore, two feet wide, laid bare. The ore averages from 18 to 20 per cent, and is to be had in great abundance, as on nearly all the other lodes in this valuable mine. A new shaft has been commenced on "William's Lode," to the north of Martin's shaft. The lode is about four feet wide. The shaft were deven about six feet upon the lode, and from the six feet some ten tons of rich ore have been raised. In Martin's shaft. The lode is about four feet wide, consisting of grey one coated black. This ore was assayed by Mr. Cistee, of Cadia, and yielded about 32 per cent, of copper. The total amount of ore on the surface, in Icely and Alger's lands, conjointly, may be roughly estimated at 130 to 150 times. Captain John Gundry has been enableyed by the sharcholders to superintend the practical working of the mines.

VOLUNTEER INTELLIGENCE

The Volunteer authorities have at different times mosted the question of an encampment, and on every occasion the idea has been favourably entertained by the volunteers; but there has always been some difficulty in the way, and every proposal for spending a few days under canvas has consequently failen through. Some weeks ago a suggestion to have an encampment at Easter was taken up with a good deal of carnettness, and application was made to the Government for the necessary funds—the Commandant undertaking, as we understand, not to expend the money unless 560 volunteers, at least, would guarantee to go into camp. No reply has been received to the application, and this is regarded as a refural by the Government to grant the required assistance. Very few were disappointed at the result; for the Legislature has latterly evinced a most determined resistance to extra expenditure in overy department of the Government; and it is little matter for wonder, therefore, that the Government abould, to some extent, be guided by the same spirit.

Young men still continue to join the force as recruits, though not in such numbers as they did a few months ago, and a considerable number muster almost every evening in the Barrack yard for drill. There is also a drill every Thursday evening for non-commissioned officers, and we understand that the attendance is satisfactory. The members of the recently formed batteries of Volunteer Artillery are also drilled on several evenings of the week, and as soon as they are sufficiently advanced in the knowledge of the big gun and carbins drills, they will elect their officers.

Captain Macleay, of No. I Battery of Artillery has resigned his commission during the past month, and Captain Blackenge has passed an estinateory examination with a view to promotion. Lieutenant Lett has also passed an examination, and Will probably be promoted in due course.

With regard to parades, there have been two during the sount, and the economicant parade on the evening of Friday, th occasions the weather was unpropitious, and the attendance consequently limited.

When the Volunteer estimates were before the House, several attempts were made to omit iteens and to reduce salaries, but these attempts only succeeded in two instances. The salary of the commandant was reduced from £500 to £402, and the item of £192 as forage allowance to the commandant and brigade adjutant was omitted. The vote as agreed to was as follows:—Commandant of all Volunteers, £402; Brigade-adjutant at 15s. per diem; clerk at 8s.; assistantianspector (Artillery) at 5s.; eserjeant-major (Raffes) at 10s.; quariermasterstant at 8s.; these serjeants at 7s.; bugier at 7s. inspector (Artillery) at 5a.; serjeant for drill instructors at 5a.; serjeant-major (Raffes) at 10a.; quartermaster-serjeant at 8a.; three serjeants at 7a.; bugler at 7a.; armourer at 5a. Among the contingencies (Artillery) there is a capitation allowance for 200 effective members at 40a.; forage allowance for assistant-inspector at 3a. 6d. per diem; and hire of horses for guns, £100; clothing for staff (Rifles), £20; travelling expenses for staff, £100; armoury repairs, &c., £200; capitation allowance for 1250 members at 30a; marksmen's badges at 3a. 6d. £75; contribution to band £260; contribution to Rifle Association for prizes £200. The whole smounted to £5331. The vote for the Naval Brigade was £3450, and showed an increase of £30 over that of last year, namely, £10 additional for the gunnery instructor at Newcastle, and £34 for incidental expenses. The following are the details:—Capitals commanding, £50; clerk and accountant, £50; gunnery instructor, £94ney, £120; ditto, Newcastle, £36; five leutemantia, at 4a. per diem, £365; five sub-lieutemanta, at 2a. per diem, £183; ten warrant offloers, at £18 exch, £190; 200 A.B.'s, at £12 each, £2400; incidental expenses, £56.

The Government omitted the usual estimate as allowance for the musketry instructor for the Rifles, and consequently the services of that officer have been dispensed with.

play it, but refused considering one claim paramount to the other, so that the lawyers alone protited by the contest. Arrah na Pegue was accordingly produced at both houses, each vieing in giving it the greatest completeness. At the Prince of Wales the cast was very strong, including the takented actress Mrs. Heir, as Arrah; Mrs. Greville, as Fanny Power; Mr Sullivan, as Shaun; Mr. Fitzgerald, as the O'Grady; and Mr. Harwood, as Feeny. The other characters were also excellently played, and the piece had a successful runnit the 12th, when it was withfarwan, and Hamlet substituted. Richard the Third, The Stranger, and The Wonder have since been presented with great completeness in acting and seenle accessories. Mrs. Heir has much improved since her previous visit to this city. She has gained greater stage experience, and her matured judgment exhibits itself in the riper conception and artistic finish that mark all her delimeations. Mr. Sullivan plays the leading business in his line, and is efficiently supported by Mrs. Greville, Miss Milme, Messrs. Heir, Fitzgerald, Harwood, Walsh, Greville, Ireland, and other members of the Royals company. Mr. Poole has retired from the managedial department, and the reins have been assumed by Mr. C. W. Barry, who will retain the directorship until the dramatic season closes, and Mr. Lyster's ever-popular opera troupe ence more give the place the everflowing appearance which it ever presents while these favourities, in their migratory teur, make it their resting place for a season. Mr. Lyster, and bready all the company, including the new baritone, Mr. Richardsen, arrived on Monday from Hobart Town. Misdame Escott, the prima donna, and Mr. H. Squires, are expected here, via Melbeurne, on Saturday, and the season will come access on Easter Monday.

The Victoria Theatre still boasts of Mr. O'Neil as its particular star, and a most attractive one has he nightly proved, contesting most successfully against the heavy metal brought to hear against him. His Shaun the Post was one of the most natural pieces of acting witnessed for some time, and drew truemedously. Mr. Burford as Peeny, and Miss Harrist Gordon as Arrah, did good service in rendering Mr. Bourcleaul's new drawing to a close, and to-morrow wight he takes his benefit, which the talents of such an immense favourite ought to render a bumper. The news of the melancholy death of the gifted G. V. Brooke has been much felt by his professional brethrem, and indeed by all who knew him. Mr. Richard Youngs, the tragodian, for yearn his most intimate associate, delivered a short is ammeriam address on Saturday evening, and elicited marked sympathy for the untimely fate of one whose name can never be dissociated from the Australian stage.

The Great World Circus has now been nearly three weeks in this city, during which it has done the largest and most paying business ever known here. The proprietors, Coke, Zoyara, and Wilson, have secured the services of a spietodd company, comprising the leading talent of the day in every branch of the profession, and a fine stud of horses, trick mules and trained dogs. One of the most popular features of their entertainments is the day performance on Saturday afternoons, which is patronised by the families of all our leading citizens. The company will continue here only about twe weeks longer, as their ongacements with other places compels them to limit their stay.

The Howson family, and Mr. Herbert, the tenor, gave a successful farewell concert at the School of tour.

Mr. Richard Younge, one of the best actors in Australia.

TO LADIES.—The only Genuine WIDOW WELCH'S PILLS are those prepared by Mrs. SARAH SMITHERS (grandfaughter to the Widow Welch), from the real family recipe, without the least variation whatever.

This medicine is justly celebrated for all female complaints, nervous disorders, weakness of the solids, loss of appetite, sick headache, lowness of spirits, and particularly for irregularities in the female system. Mrs. Sarah Smithers recommends mothers, guardians, managers of schools, and all those who have the eare of females at an early age, never to be without this taseful medicine.

Important Cantion.—The only real proprietor and possessor of the recipe, grandfaughter of the late Widow Welch, feels it her duty, not only in defence of her own and sele right, but as a protection to the public, to declars herself the only person entitled to the original recipe, or at all authorised to make or prepare the said medicine.

Observe that the genuine are wrapped in blue paper, and signed on the label by Mrs. Sarah Smithers.

Sold in boxes at 2s. 9d. each by most respectable chemists.

DANDEIFF LOTION, for removing Dandriff and atimulating the Growth of the Hair.

This highly esteemed Lotion, prepared from a recipe of the eminent physician, Dotor Locock, has proved most beneficial in completely removing dandriff from the hair, and all culanceaus entrajens of the scalp; and when saed daily with the ordinary hair brush, communicates a psculier actiness and brilliancy to the hair, and is alike favourable to its growth and permanency.
